Finds From A Roman Sewer System And An Adjacent Building In Church Street:

Finds from a Roman Sewer System and an Adjacent Building in Church Street Arthur MacGregor, 1976 Small Finds and Ancient Social Practices in the Northwest Provinces of the Roman Empire Stefanie Hoss, Alissa Whitmore, 2016-07-31 Small finds the stuff of everyday life offer archaeologists a fascinating glimpse into the material lives of the ancient Romans These objects hold great promise for unravelling the ins and outs of daily life especially for the social groups activities and regions for which few written sources exist Focusing on amulets brooches socks hobnails figurines needles and other mundane artefacts these 12 papers use small finds to reconstruct social lives and practices in the Roman Northwest provinces Taking social life broadly the various contributions offer insights into the everyday use of objects to express social identities Roman religious practices in the provinces and life in military communities By integrating small finds from the Northwest provinces with material iconographic and textual evidence from the whole Roman empire contributors seek to demystify Roman magic and Mithraic religion discover the latest trends in ancient fashion socks with sandals explore Roman interactions with Neolithic monuments and explain unusual finds in unexpected places Throughout the authors strive to maintain a critical awareness of archaeological contexts and site formation processes to offer interpretations of past peoples and behaviors that most likely reflect the lived reality of the Romans While the range of topics in this volume gives it wide appeal scholars working with small finds religion dress and life in the Northwest provinces will find it especially of interest Small Finds and Ancient Social Practices grew out of a session at the 2014 Theoretical Roman Archaeology Conference The Romano-British Villa at Castle Copse, Great Bedwyn E. P. Allison, 1997 These efforts have shed light not only on the history of the villa itself but also on the shifting focus of power over the course of a millennium at the sites associated with Castle Copse in the immediate region the Iron Age hillfort of Chisbury a post Roman settlement and a Saxon village destined to become an urban center Roman Artefacts and Society Ellen Swift, 2017-02-09 In this book Ellen Swift uses design theory previously neglected in Roman archaeology to investigate Roman artefacts in a new way making a significant contribution to both Roman social history and our understanding of the relationships that exist between artefacts and people Based on extensive data collection and the close study of artefacts from museum collections and archives the book examines the relationship between artefacts everyday behaviour and experience The concept of affordances features of an artefact that make possible and incline users towards particular uses for functional artefacts is an important one for the approach taken This concept is carefully evaluated by considering affordances in relation to other sources of evidence such as use wear archaeological context the end products resulting from artefact use and experimental reconstruction Artefact types explored in the case studies include locks and keys pens shears glass vessels dice boxes and finger rings using material mainly drawn from the north western Roman provinces with some material also from Roman Egypt The book then considers how we can use artefacts to understand particular aspects of Roman behaviour and experience including discrepant experiences according to factors such as age social position and left or right handedness which are fostered through artefact design The relationship between production and users of artefacts is also explored investigating what particular production methods make possible in terms of user experience and also examining production constraints that have unintended consequences for users The book examines topics such as the perceived agency of objects differences in social practice across the provinces cultural change and development in daily practice and the persistence of tradition and social convention It shows that design intentions everyday habits of use and the constraints of production processes each contribute to the reproduction and transformation of material culture

The Ruin of Roman Britain James Gerrard,2013-10-10 How did Roman Britain end This new study draws on fresh archaeological discoveries to argue that the end of Roman Britain was not the product of either a violent cataclysm or an economic collapse Instead the structure of late antique society based on the civilian ideology of paideia was forced to change by the disappearance of the Roman state By the fifth century elite power had shifted to the warband and the edges of their swords In this book Dr Gerrard describes and explains that process of transformation and explores the role of the Anglo Saxons in this time of change This profound ideological shift returned Britain to a series of small worlds the existence of which had been hidden by the globalizing structures of Roman imperialism Highly illustrated the book includes two appendices which detail Roman cemetery sites and weapon trauma and pottery assemblages from the period

The Oxford Handbook of Roman Britain Martin Millett,Louise Revell,Alison Jane Moore,2016 This handbook is currently in development with individual articles publishing online in advance of print publication At this time we cannot add information about unpublished articles in this handbook however the table of contents will continue to grow as additional articles pass through the review process and are added to the site Please note that the online publication date for this handbook is the date that the first article in the title was published online Roman Britain is a critical area of research within the provinces of the Roman empire Within the last 15 20 years the study of Roman Britain has been transformed through an enormous amount of new and interesting work which is not reflected in the main stream literature

Blue/Green Glass Bottles from Roman Britain H.E.M. Cool,2024-04-04 Square bottles came into use in the AD 60s and rapidly became the commonest glass vessel form in the empire For the next two centuries their fragments dominate all glass assemblages This book presents a classification scheme for the moulded base patterns which allows their chronological development to be reconstructed

Aspects of Industry in Roman Yorkshire and the North Pete Wilson,Jennifer Price,2003-03-27 At the frontiers of the Roman Empire military settlements had a profound influence on local crafting traditions Legions were not just fighting units they contained a large number of craftsmen and the fortress would have been a centre of manufacturing activity A timber legionary fortress for example required vast numbers of nails many of which would have been made by legionary smiths on site and an army of thousands would require many more pots shoes and tents than could be produced by local domestic potters and leather workers But can all developments in local craft and industry be seen as a result of the appearance of the Roman army The ten papers in this volume focus on craft production in Roman Yorkshire and the evidence for the role of the army in local manufacturing activities Several papers examine broad questions surrounding the organisation and scale of production in urban and rural areas Others consider the local evidence for individual materials and production processes including those associated with pottery glass copper alloys non ferrous metals leather jet and building stone Artefacts in Roman Britain Lindsay Allason-Jones,2011-02-10 Helps the student understand the numerous artefacts from Roman Britain and what they reveal about life in the province

Housesteads Roman Fort - the Grandest Station Alan Rushworth,2014-02-15 Housesteads is one of the most important forts on Hadrian s Wall Extensive excavations were carried out between 1874 and 1981 by Newcastle University Combining the results with those of excavations done between 1959 and 1961 by Durham University we now have a complete plan of the north east part of the fort These excavations uncovered principally Buildings XIII XIV and XV plus stretches of rampartbetween the north and east gates along with a multitude of features and stratigraphic evidence revealing not only the sequences but also large finds assemblages In addition to shedding much light on the material culture of the fort s occupants and the structural and chronological relationships between various parts of the fort limited reinvestigation of Building XIV and excavatin of the east end of Building XV enabled significant reinterpretation of the original conclusions reached by the Durham investigators including some redating of structures These excavations uncover the full 300 year period during which the fort formed an integral part of the Roman military frontier for much if not all of that time the base of the cohorts I Tungrorum milliaria peditat This report documents the excavations and gives full finds reports and the analysis of the evidence has enabled the authors to provide a full history of this part of the fort Eating and Drinking in Roman

Nicopolis ad Istrum III Andrew Poulter,2007-05-27 This the third and final monograph completes the description of the excavations carried out by the British team part of the Anglo Bulgarian archaeological programme on the site of Nicopolis ad Istrum in northern Bulgaria one of the best preserved ancient cities of the Roman Empire The site provided a unique opportunity to compare the changing layout and economy of an urban centre from the Roman to the late Roman and the early Byzantine periods c AD 100 600 The excavations geophysics coins and wall plaster were published in volume 1 Volume 2 describes the evidence for economic changes between the Roman and early Byzantine periods and contains full reports on the pottery and the glass This volume includes full descriptions of all small finds ceramic copper alloy and iron objects glass lamps sculpture architecture and flints each object provided with a description of its archaeological context and the date of deposition The second half of the volume identifies the environmental and economic differences between the three main periods in the history of the site Reports include quantified assemblages of zooarchaeological finds large and small mammals fish birds archaeobotanical remains mollusca and human skeletons as well as the results of metallurgical analysis copper alloy iron and natural steel Not only is this range and quantity of finds in these reports unparalleled in the Balkans they represent a valuable resource for the material culture of the Roman and late Roman periods coming as they do from a part of the Roman Empire which has produced very few comparable assemblages Of no less importance are the quantified bioarchaeological data which offers a unique insight into the changing morphology and economy of a Roman late Roman and early Byzantine city Sanitation, Latrines and Intestinal Parasites in Past Populations Piers D. Mitchell, 2016-03-03

Sanitation and intestinal health is something we often take for granted today However people living in many regions of the developing world still suffer with debilitating diseases due to the lack of sanitation Despite its clear impact upon health in modern times sanitation in past populations is a topic that has received surprisingly little attention This book brings together key experts from around the world to explore fascinating aspects of life in the past relevant to sanitation and how that affected our ancestors By its end readers will realize that toilets were in use in ancient Mesopotamia even before the invention of writing and that flushing toilets with anatomic seats were a technology of ancient Greece at the time of the minotaur myth They will see how sanitation compared in ancient Rome and medieval London and will take a virtual walk around the sanitation of York at the time of the Vikings Readers will also understand which intestinal parasites infected humans in different regions of the world over different time periods what these parasites tell us about early human evolution later population migrations past diet lifestyle and the effects of sanitation technology There is good evidence that over the millennia people in the past realized that sanitation mattered They invented toilets cleaner water supplies drains waste disposal and sanitation legislation While past views on sanitation were very different to those of today it is clear than many past societies took sanitation much more seriously than was previously thought Religion in Roman Britain Mr Martin

Henig, 2003-09-02 Apart from Christianity and the Oriental Cults religion in Roman Britain is often discussed as though it remained basically Celtic in belief and practice under a thin veneer of Roman influence Using a wide range of archaeological evidence Dr Henig shows that the Roman element in religion was of much greater significance and that the natural Roman veneration for the gods found meaningful expression even in the formal rituals practised in the public temples of Britain

Yorkshire Richard Morris, 2018-01-25 Yorkshire is a continent unto itself a region where mountain plain coast downs fen and heath lie close By weaving history family stories travelogue and ecology Richard Morris reveals how Yorkshire took shape as a landscape and in literature legend and popular regard The result is a fascinating and wide ranging meditation on Yorkshire and Yorkshireness told through the prism of the region s most extraordinary people and places Finds from Roman Aldborough M. C. Bishop,1996 The assemblage of finds from Roman Aldborough is one of considerable importance yet it is almost invisible because the site museum is only open in the summer months and has very limited display space The publication of this catalogue is therefore essential to make the large body of material more widely available This catalogue concentrates on the small finds including a wealth of domestic items jewellery tools and a collection of military equipment of particular significance for the history of the site Almost all of the items are illustrated with full descriptions and references where applicable A book which brings a rich collection into public view making it available for assimilation and reassessment The Archaeology of York York Archaeological Trust,Peter V Addyman,Arthur MacGregor,Council for British Archaeology,1976
