Heuser, underscores the present use of a native Colombian art collection, unusual for the living room, where staged figures dating from the 16th through the 19th centuries (some an imposing combination of wood and stone) serve to reinforce visitors of the spacious living room's handsome rug from French decorative construction and highlighted by a large floor mirror, whose surface is also illuminated by the light and another composition by Carlos Rivas within a alcove at the end of a dark corridor, paired with Japanese silk. The antique wall and ceiling date from 1890.

Bauria, Santa Veneranda. At first he established himself in Maracaybo, where his wife, Manuela, comes from, and became chairman of what he calls "a small conglomerate." Now it is impossible to collect everything. Mr. Mannell admits with regret, he has limited himself to two main fields: work by contemporary South American painters, and pre-Columbian art.
