Fire This Time Young Activists And The New Feminism:

The Fire This Time Vivien Labaton, Dawn Lundy Martin, 2009-06-03 Young feminists today are becoming activists on behalf of many causes beyond the classic and indispensable feminist ones of reproductive rights and equal pay for equal work. In The Fire This Time Dawn Martin, one of four founders of The Third Wave Foundation, a multiracial multi-issue and multicultural activist organization, and Vivien Labaton, its first executive director, offer an exciting cross-section of feminist voices that express new directions in activism, identity, and thought. Ayana Bird dissects the role of black women in hip hop. Joshua Breitbart and Ana Noguiera demonstrate how Indimedia can break the hold of the corporate media over the news, and Jennifer Bleyer reviews the exhilarating power unleashed by the GirlZine movement. Anna Kirkland's analysis of transsexual and transgendered people and the law is deeply thoughtful, and Shireen Lee's piece on women, technology, and feminism envisions empowering prospects for women. Ranging from media and culture to politics and globalization, The Fire This Time is a call to new frontiers of activism and helps reinvent feminism for a new generation.

The Trouble Between Us Winifred Breines, 2006-04-06 Inspired by the idealism of the civil rights movement, the women who launched the radical second wave of the feminist movement believed as a bedrock principle in universal sisterhood and color-blind democracy. Their hopes, however, were soon dashed. To this day, the failure to create an integrated movement remains a sensitive and contested issue. In The Trouble Between Us, Winifred Breines explores why a racially integrated women's liberation movement did not develop in the United States. Drawing on flyers, letters, newspapers, journals, institutional records, and oral histories, Breines dissects how white and black women's participation in the movements of the 1960s led to the development of separate feminisms. Herself a participant in these events, Breines attempts to reconcile the explicit professions of anti-racism by white feminists with the accusations of mistreatment, ignorance, and neglect by African American feminists. Many radical white women, unable to see beyond their own experiences and idealism, often behaved in unconsciously or abstractly racist ways despite their passionately anti-racist stance and hard work to develop an interracial movement. As Breines argues, however, white feminists' racism is not the only reason for the absence of an interracial feminist movement. Segregation, black women's interest in the Black Power movement, class differences, and the development of identity politics with an emphasis on difference were all powerful factors that divided white and black women. By the late 1970s and early 1980s, white feminists began to understand black feminism's call to include race and class in gender analyses, and black feminists began to give white feminists some credit for their political work. Despite early setbacks, white and black radical feminists eventually developed cross-racial feminist political projects. Their struggle to bridge the racial divide provides a model for all Americans in a multiracial society.

Feminist Cyberspaces Sharon Collingwood, Alvina E. Quintana, Caroline J. Smith, 2012-01-17 Feminist Cyberspaces: Pedagogies in Transition is a collection of essays exploring the ways in which new media technologies are being used in the feminist classroom. The collection has been structured to reflect the multifaceted nature of education.

today Learning takes place on a personal level through independent study and social media it takes place at a local level in our classrooms and lecture halls but it is also increasingly taking place on a global scale as new technologies foster international collaboration between individuals and organizations In addition there is a growing acceptance of learning in the collaborative 3D classrooms of virtual worlds These educational spaces are not mutually exclusive as the contributions to this volume make clear The anthology explores how technology is being used in antiviolence teaching art education HIV and AIDS education and other specialized topics but it also gives many examples of innovations in teaching introductory courses The technology used ranges from the implementation of course management systems for large university classes to the use of digital storytelling in small groups outside the university It also explores technology for removing barriers to people with disabilities in both traditional and online classrooms The collection is not a how to book but it does use practical experience as a basis for feminist theorizing of the classroom All of the essays look at the use of new technology in the light of feminist pedagogy seeking new ways to foster provocative creative and non hierarchical learning that transcends the physical boundaries of the university
