The Crisis, 1979-02 The Crisis founded by W E B Du Bois as the official publication of the NAACP is a journal of civil rights history politics and culture and seeks to educate and challenge its readers about issues that continue to plague African Americans and other communities of color For nearly 100 years The Crisis has been the magazine of opinion and thought leaders decision makers peacemakers and justice seekers It has chronicled informed educated entertained and in many instances set the economic political and social agenda for our nation and its multi ethnic citizens Fire-bell in the Night

Oscar Handlin, 1964 Blacks in the Jewish Mind Seth Forman, 1998-07-01 Since the 1960s the relationship between Blacks and Jews has been a contentious one While others have attempted to explain or repair the break up of the Jewish alliance on civil rights Seth Forman here sets out to determine what Jewish thinking on the subject of Black Americans reveals about Jewish identity in the U S Why did American Jews get involved in Black causes in the first place What did they have to gain from it And what does that tell us about American Jews In an extremely provocative analysis Forman argues that the commitment of American Jews to liberalism and their historic definition of themselves as victims has caused them to behave in ways that were defined as good for Blacks but which in essence were contrary to Jewish interests They have not been able to dissociate their needs religious spiritual communal political from those of African Americans and have therefore acted in ways which have threatened their own cultural vitality Avoiding the focus on Black victimization and white racism that often infuses work on Blacks and Jews Forman emphasizes the complexities inherent in one distinct white ethnic group s involvement in America s racial dilemma The Ocean Hill-Brownsville Conflict Glen Anthony Harris, 2012-05-18 The history of Black Jewish relations from the beginning of the twentieth century shows that while they were sometimes partners of convenience there was also a deep suspicion of each other that broke out into frequent public exchanges During the twentieth century the entanglements of both groups have at times provided an important impetus for social justice in the United States and at other times have been the cause of great tension The Ocean Hill Brownsville Conflict explores this fraught relationship which is evident in the intellectual lives of these communities The tension was as apparent in the life and works of Marcus Garvey Richard Wright and James Baldwin as it was in the exchanges between blacks and Jews in intellectual periodicals and journals in the 1940s 1950s and 1960s The Ocean Hill Brownsville conflict was rooted in this tension and the longstanding differences over community control of school districts and racial preferences Bibliography

African American Urban History since World War II Kenneth L. Kusmer, Joe W. Trotter, 2009-08-01 Historians have devoted surprisingly little attention to African American urban history of the postwar period especially compared with earlier decades Correcting this imbalance African American Urban History since World War II features an exciting mix of seasoned scholars and fresh new voices whose combined efforts provide the first comprehensive assessment of this important subject The first of this volume's five groundbreaking sections focuses on black migration and Latino immigration examining tensions and alliances that emerged between African Americans and other groups Exploring the challenges of residential segregation and deindustrialization later sections tackle such topics as the real estate industry's discriminatory practices the movement of middle class blacks to the suburbs and the influence of black urban activists on national employment and social welfare policies Another group of contributors examines these themes through the lens of gender chronicling deindustrialization's disproportionate impact on women and women's leading roles in movements for social change Concluding with a set of essays on black culture and consumption this volume fully realizes its goal of linking local transformations with the national and global processes that affect urban class and race relations

An Epitaph for Little Rock John A. Kirk, 2010 This collection of essays mines the Arkansas Historical Quarterly from the 1960s to the present to form a body of work that represents some of the finest scholarship on the crisis from distinguished southern historians Numan V Bartley Neil R McMillen Tony A Freyer Roy Reed David L Chappell Lorraine Gates Schuyler John A Kirk Azza Salama Layton and Ben F Johnson III A comprehensive array of topics are explored including the state regional national and international dimensions of the crisis as well as local white and black responses to events gender issues politics and law Introduced with an informative historiographical essay from John A Kirk An Epitaph for Little Rock is essential reading on this defining moment in America's civil rights struggle

The Academic Revolution Christopher Jencks, 2017-09-08 The Academic Revolution describes the rise to power of professional scholars and scientists first in America's leading universities and now in the larger society as well Without attempting a full scale history of American higher education it outlines a theory about its development and present status It is illustrated with firsthand observations of a wide variety of colleges and universities the country over colleges for the rich and colleges for the upwardly mobile colleges for vocationally oriented men and colleges for intellectually and socially oriented women colleges for Catholics and colleges for Protestants colleges for blacks and colleges for rebellious whites The authors also look at some of the revolution's consequences They see it as intensifying conflict between young and old and provoking young people raised in permissive middle class homes to attacks on the legitimacy of adult authority In the process the revolution subtly transformed the kinds of work to which talented young people aspire contributing to the decline of entrepreneurship and the rise of professionalism They conclude that mass higher education for all its advantages has had no measurable effect on the rate of social mobility or the degree of equality in American society Jencks and Riesman are not nostalgic their description of the nineteenth century liberal arts colleges is corrosively critical They maintain that American students know more than ever before that their teachers are more competent and stimulating than in earlier times and that the American system of higher education has brought the American people to an unprecedented level of academic competence But while they regard the academic revolution as having been an historically necessary and progressive step they argue that like all revolutions it can devour its children For Jencks and Riesman academic professionalism is an advance over amateur gentility but they warn of its dangers and limitations the elitism and arrogance implicit in meritocracy the myopia that derives from a strictly academic view of human experience and understanding the complacency that comes from making technical competence an end rather than a means

Old Memories, New Moods: Americans from Africa Peter I. Rose, 1970 Whoever has tried to understand the experience of African Americans in the United States is well aware of its controversial nature Highly regarded scholars often differ markedly in their interpretations of empirical findings For many years for example the views of Melville J Herskovits and E Franklin Frazier about the extent of African influence on American Negro life were hotly debated More recent controversies include among others the polemics over Stanley Elkins interpretation of slavery over the Moynihan Report and over William Styron's The Confessions of Nat Turner all dating from the late twentieth century Old Memories New Moods contains essays on the roots of African American protest comments on the background and character of the Negro Revolt and the Civil Rights Movement interpretations of the impact and significance of Black Power and finally varied views on changing self images and the meaning of Black Pride Original essays written especially for this book include those by Mina Davis Caulfield August Meier and Elliott Rudwick Gerald W Mullin and the editor Many other essays by black and white social scientists psychiatrists historians and political figures are offered in careful juxtaposition Among these contributors are anthropologists Melville J Herskovits and Ulf Hannerz social historians Raymond and Alice Bauer Winthrop D Jordan Eugene D Genovese Kenneth Stampp and Stanley Elkins Conceived as a continuum with volume one reissued by Transaction earlier each of the two volumes is distinct and self contained The first is particularly concerned with general background and life styles and the second with protest and attempts to develop new communal activities and avenues of expression Both should be most useful to all concerned with teaching and learning about African Americans in the United States be it in traditional social science or history programs in special seminars or in African American studies courses Peter I Rose is Sophia Smith Professor Emeritus of Sociology and Anthropology at the Louise W and Edmund J Khan Liberal Arts Institute and a member of the Graduate Faculty of the University of Massachusetts He has been a Fulbright Lecturer at the University of Leicester in England at Kyoto University in Japan and at the Flinders University in Australia      The U.S. Army and the Negro US Army Military History Research Collection, John Slonaker, 1975
