Forest Fire-danger Measurement in the Eastern United States George Meredith Jemison, Anson William Lindenmuth, John James Keetch, 1950 Wildland Fire Danger Estimation and Mapping Emilio Chuvieco, 2003. The book presents a wide range of techniques for extracting information from satellite remote sensing images in forest fire danger assessment. It covers the main concepts involved in fire danger rating and analyses the inputs derived from remotely sensed data for mapping fire danger at both the local and global scale. The questions addressed concern the estimation of fuel moisture content, the description of fuel structural properties, the estimation of meteorological danger indices, the analysis of human factors associated with fire ignition, and the integration of different risk factors in a geographic information system for fire danger management.

The 1978 National Fire-Danger Rating System, 1984 Measuring Forest-fire Danger in Northern Idaho Harry Thomas Gisborne, 1928. Fire is a natural phenomenon occurring in accordance with natural laws. The first problem in dealing with fire is therefore to discover these laws, and this naturally resolves itself into the problem of isolating and measuring each factor that influences fire and determining its relative importance. The ultimate scope of forest fire studies is limited only by the number of these factors.

The National Fire-Danger Rating System, 1978 John E. Deeming, Robert E. Burgan, Intermountain Forest and Range Experiment Station (Ogden, Utah), Jack D. Cohen, 1977 Forest Fire Danger Prediction Using Deterministic-Probabilistic Approach Baranovskiy, Nikolay Viktorovich, 2021-05-21. Forest fires cause ecological, economic, and social damage to various states of the international community. The causes of forest fires are rather varied, but the main factor is human activity in settlements, industrial facilities, objects of transport infrastructure, and intensively developed territories; in other words, anthropogenic load. In turn, storm activity is also a basic reason for forest fires in remote territories. Therefore, scientists across the world have developed methods, approaches, and systems to predict forest fire danger, including the impact of human and storm activity on forested territories. An important and comprehensive point of research is on the complex deterministic-probabilistic approach, which combines mathematical models of forest fuel ignition by various sources of high temperature and probabilistic criteria of forest fire occurrence. Forest Fire Danger Prediction Using Deterministic-Probabilistic Approach provides a comprehensive approach of forest fire danger prediction using mathematical models of forest fuel with consideration to anthropogenic load storm activity and meteorological parameters Specifically it uses the deterministic probabilistic approach to predict forest fire danger and improve forest protection from fires The chapters will cover various tree types mathematical models and solutions for reducing the destructive consequences of forest fires on ecosystems This book is ideal for professionals and researchers working in the field of forestry forest fire danger researchers executives computer engineers practitioners government officials policymakers academicians and students looking for a new system to predict forest fire danger 2023
