Exploiting East Asian Cinemas Ken Provencher, Mike Dillon, 2018-01-11 From the 1970s onward exploitation cinema as a concept has circulated inside and outside of East Asian nations and cultures in terms of aesthetics and marketing However crucial questions about how global networks of production and circulation alter the identity of an East Asian film as mainstream or as exploitation have yet to be addressed in a comprehensive way Exploiting East Asian Cinemas serves as the first authoritative guide to the various ways in which contemporary cinema from and about East Asia has trafficked across the somewhat elusive line between mainstream and exploitation Focusing on networks of circulation distribution and reception this collection treats the exploitation cinemas of East Asia as mobile texts produced consumed and in many ways reappropriated across national and hemispheric boundaries As the processes of globalization have decoupled products from their nations of origin transnational taste cultures have declared certain works as art or trash regardless of how those works are received within their native locales By charting the routes of circulation of notable films from Japan China and South Korea this anthology contributes to transnationally accepted formulations of what constitutes East Asian exploitation cinema

Elvis Costello, Joni Mitchell, and the Torch Song Tradition Larry David Smith,2004-04-30 The torch song has long been a vehicle for expression perhaps American song s most sheerly visceral one Two artists in particular have built upon this tradition to express their own unique outlooks on their lives and the world around them Joni Mitchell Elvis Costello and the Torch Song Tradition combines biographical material artist commentary critical interpretation and selected exemplars of the writers work to reveal the power of authorship and the creative drive necessary to negotiate an artistic vision in the complicated mechanisms of the commercial music industry Author Larry David Smith as in his Bob Dylan Bruce Springsteen and American Song considers the complicated intersection of biography creative philosophy artistic imperative and stylistic tendencies in the work of both Joni Mitchell and Elvis Costello two songwriters with seemingly nothing in common one famously confessional and one famously confrontational Yet as Smith shows so incisively they are two personalities that prove fascinatingly complementary Mitchell and Costello both yielded bodies of work that are cohesive coherent and rich in meaning Both have made historic contributions to the singer songwriter model two rebellious responses to the creative and commercial compromises associated with their chosen field and two distinct thematic responses to the torch song tradition Smith examines these responses offering a unique and invaluable exploration of the craft of two of the last century s most towering musical figures

American Blood Holly Jackson, 2013-10-04 Conventional understandings of the family in nineteenth century literary studies depict a venerated institution rooted in sentiment sympathy and intimacy American Blood upends this notion showing how novels of the period frequently emphasize the darker sides of the vaunted domestic unit Rather than a source of security and warmth the family emerges as exclusionary deleterious to civic life and antagonistic to the political enterprise of the United States Through inventive readings supported by cultural historical research Holly Jackson explores critical depictions of the family in a range of both canonical and forgotten novels Republican opposition to the generational transmission of property in early America emerges in Nathaniel Hawthorne s The House of the Seven Gables 1851 The tragic mulatta trope in William Wells Brown s Clotel 1853 is revealed as a metaphor for sterility and national death linking mid century theories of hybrid infertility to anxieties concerning the nation s crisis of political continuity A striking interpretation of Harriet Beecher Stowe s Dred 1856 occupies a subsequent chapter as Jackson uncovers how the author most associated with the enshrinement of domestic kinship deconstructs both scientific and sentimental conceptions of the family A focus on feminist views of maternity and the family anchor readings of Anna E Dickinson s What Answer 1868 and Sarah Orne Jewett s The Country of the Pointed Firs 1896 while a chapter on Pauline Hopkins s Hagar s Daughter 1901 examines how it engages with socio scientific discourses of black atavism to expose the family s role not simply as a metaphor for the nation but also as the mechanism for the reproduction of its unequal social relations Cogently argued clearly written and anchored in unconventional readings American Blood presents a series of lively arguments that will interest literary scholars and historians of the family as it reveals how nineteenth century novels imagine even welcome the decline of the family and the social order that it supports Protecting Our Ports Suzette R. Grillo, Rebecca J. Cruise, 2016-04-08 Since the terrorist attacks of September 11 2001 there has been much discussion of the security of borders and ports of entry in the United States and around the world Ports of entry particularly sea ports are viewed as one of the most defenceless targets for a terrorist attack In response to this perceived vulnerability a number of port security initiatives have been implemented both on both a domestic and international level This timely project investigates a number of issues surrounding the container security issue It examines the scope of containerized freight security analyzes cooperation between agents in the United States and abroad explores the politics of port security and provides an assessment of 17 of the world's sea ports The work sheds light on the container security threat and the domestic and international responses that have emerged as well as those steps that still must be taken Congressional Record United States. Congress, 2009 Popular Science, 1949-04 Popular Science gives our readers the information and tools to improve their technology and their world The core belief that Popular Science and our readers share The future is going to be better and science and technology are the driving forces that will help make it better Stan Getz Nicholas Churchill, 2004-12-29 Some may only know the jazz legend Stan Getz tenor saxophonist for his bossa nova hits Desafinado and The Girl from Ipanema However Getz born in 1927 began to play professionally at age 15 and his rich musical career lasted until shortly before his death on June 6 1991 He played in a wide variety of musical settings such as big band orchestral quartet and duo The incredible beauty of his sound sparked the late jazz great John Coltrane to say We would all play like Stan Getz if we could When Getz died jazz trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie said He was sheer genius And there's one thing about this man he was the most melodic player on the jazz scene This bibliography the first of its kind contains a total of 2 576 bibliographic citations with 2 292 of them annotated It includes references to periodical literature articles from news wire services books dissertations films videos television programs radio broadcasts and Web sites The citations are primarily from English language sources Materials in English and French as well as a handful of items from other languages are annotated This work includes a preface that contains the scope of the work a user's guide and a list of more than 340 periodicals cited The main body of the work is divided into the following sections album reviews performance reviews discographies and discographical information transcriptions biographical and critical works filmography and appendix Album reviews are provided for 240 albums along with the discographical details for each of these albums The appendix contains unannotated citations to materials in Danish Dutch German Italian Norwegian Spanish and Swedish
