Tournament Approaches to Policy Reform Clifford F. Zinnes, 2010-10-01 While much foreign aid achieves commendable goals some is ineffective In this volume Clifford Zinnes argues that a donor's intrinsic informational limitations on the local context as well as inability to control the progress of interventions mean that lack of success is not rooting in insufficient funding but in maladapted institution designs of interventions that don't foster local ownership He identifies and assesses a newly emerging class of foreign aid delivery that promises to overcome these obstacles The approach is based on prospective inter jurisdictional competition PIJC Beneficiary groups often local level governments supported by their private sector and civil society act as teams and compete against each other under explicit predefined rules and objectives to design and implement interventions under their own aegis to achieve the highest quantitatively measured performance either relative to others tournaments or against a preset benchmark certification Teams that cooperate internally are the likeliest to win the rewards which aside from the longer run benefits of the intervention itself might include more substantive financial or technical assistance from the sponsor Since only groups serious about reforming choose to play Zinnes says the incentives generated by the ensuing race to the top competition create local ownership encouraging recipients to draw on their own knowledge Moreover since all teams that compete and not just those who win donor rewards benefit from their own reform efforts he argues that this approach can leverage aid resources more than a conventional bilateral aid agreement Zinnes presents a dozen recent applications of the approach including those sponsored by the World Bank USAID the United Nations the Ford Foundation and others He also recommends improvements and ways to scale up PIJC based projects in applications ranging from protecting the environment and reducing red tap
