Economic Policy for Growth Salim Rashid,2012-12-06 Economic Development is but one facet of Human Development This forces us to ask how do humans develop Man is a social animal and the growth of our humanity requires various social institutions such as bureaucracy The paradox of capitalism is that it is a system ostensibly based on self interest yet wholly dependent on non market values for its success These non market values are shaped by two much neglected factors religion and ethnicity Economic Development is an applied field whatever it claims as a conclusion should be an applicable conclusion This requires attention to all those non economic factors which translate economic decisions into practice such as the forces of nationalism versus the pressures of such global powers as US foreign policy and the advice of the IMF IBRD Since policy is our goal theory whose intellectual basis is inaccessible to policy makers or which fails to have application should be minimized Mathematical models are best avoided and if they are to be used the burden of proof must be placed upon their proponents As insights about the market are limited neither by time nor space poor countries can learn from rich ones and vice versa It is most fruitful to focus on examples of success such as the East Asian economies They are the clearest illustration of the fact that rapid economic development is possible even to those who have suffered through imperialism and possess few natural resources but have their work and their determination intact One good example is enough

Rethinking Economic Development, Growth, and Institutions Jaime Ros, 2013-10-03 Why are some countries richer than others Why do some economies grow so much faster than others do Do economies tend to converge to similar levels of per capita income Or is catching up simply impossible If modern technology has shown the potential to raise living standards to first world levels why is it that the vast majority of the world's population lives in poverty in underdeveloped countries These questions have been at the heart of development economics since its inception several decades ago and are now at the center of the research agenda of the modern economics of growth This book reviews the answers to these questions in the contemporary fields of growth theory and comparative development It is a sequel to Development Theory and the Economics of Growth published in 2000 with the aim to vindicate the theoretical insights and accumulated empirical knowledge of classical development economics and to integrate them into the mainstream of modern growth economics The growth and development fields have expanded in the last twelve years in welcome directions that aim to deepen our understanding of the fundamental determinants of comparative development This new book evaluates these new directions including developments in endogenous growth theory and economic geography as well as the rise and challenge of the new institutional economics in the light of the earlier classical contributions to development theory Economic Development Marcelo M. Giugale, 2013-12-06 There is much discussion about global poverty and the billions of people living with almost nothing Why is it that governments development banks think tanks academics NGOs and many others can't just fix the problem Why is it that seemingly obvious reforms never happen Why are prosperity and equity so elusive Economic Development What Everyone Needs to Know brings readers right into the trenches of economic development to show what practitioners are actually doing and explains the issues dilemmas options frustrations and opportunities they face day in and day out In straightforward language and a question and answer format Marcelo M Giugale outlines the frontier of the development practice or as he puts it the point at which knowledge stops and ignorance begins He takes readers from why it is so difficult to get governments to function to the basic policies that economies need to work well the powerful new tools for social assistance and the challenges of inclusion education health infrastructure technology data and foreign aid The book draws examples from the world over but pays particular attention to the region that represents development and the need for it better than any other Africa Giugale gives no definitive universal answers They don't really exist Rather he highlights what works what doesn't and what's promising But his overall message is clear economic development and the poverty reduction that goes with it have never been more possible for more countries What Everyone Needs to Know is a registered trademark of Oxford University Press Economic Development Charles Poor Kindleberger, Bruce H. Herrick, 1977 Development and measurement Methodological approaches to development Theories of economic growth Land and other natural resources Physical capital Labor and human capital Organization Technology technological change and transfer of technology Scale Structural change Theories of economic development Economic policy and the market system Choosing sectoral priorities Monetary and fiscal policies Rapid population growth Urbanization and urban economic development Import substitution and export promotion International transfers Foreign investment and international firms International collective action Employment and income distribution Planning for development
