Economic Trends In The Mena Region 2002:

Economic Trends in the MENA Region, 2002 Economic Research Forum for the Arab Countries, Iran, and Turkey, 2002 Economic Systems of Innovation in the Arab Region Samia Mohamed Nour, 2016-04-30 The Arab region has become a hotbed of economic growth in recent decades While this growth has indisputably brought in wealth there are still countless questions about the characteristics constraints and implications of the region s systems of innovation Do these systems even exist in the Arab region How does the current economic structure affect regional innovation Is the presence of natural resources a help or a hindrance Economic Systems of Innovation in the Arab Region discusses the causes consequences and implications of poor systems of innovation in the Middle East and North Africa By examining the comparative weakness of innovation the economic structure and the diversity of the region Nour shows that the development of Arab regional systems of innovation is contingent upon the development of adequate economic policies and incentives in the area Her contribution is key for students and scholars of economics innovation and international relations

Technological Change and Skill Development in Arab Gulf Countries Samia Mohamed Nour, 2013-12-02 This book discusses skill formation upskilling of workers and their interaction with technological change in Gulf countries Heavy dependence on oil the Dutch Disease and the high incidence of unskilled foreign workers have caused serious structural imbalances in the labour market in the Gulf The author shows that success of economic development strategies to address such imbalances are all contingent upon the development of adequate and appropriate skills in the region This book confirms the role and impact of the deficiencies in the educational system alongside the well established effects of the excessive use of uneducated foreign workers and lack of incentives in the labour market A comprehensive investigation of the skill problem and an elaborate in depth analysis to assess the causes consequences and relationships between poor skills and technological performance are highlights of this book This is an ideal resource for policy makers in the Gulf region and researchers of the topic The Economic Development Process in the Middle East and North Africa Alessandro Romagnoli, Luisa

Mengoni, 2013-11-12 Offering a comprehensive analysis of the development of economies in the Middle East and North Africa over the past half century this book charts the progress of these countries through an examination of an Islamic model of economic development reform processes and economic integration Far from being a simple process economic development in the Middle East and North Africa is dependent on the interaction of a set of changing systems including international relations the political regime economy and society By analysing these interdependent factors The Economic Development Process in MENA seeks to provide answers to the most pressing issues facing the economies in this area Providing an interpretation of regional development in light of dialectics between state and society this book will be of value to students and scholars with an interest in the Middle East Economics and International Relations Arab Economies in the Twenty-First Century Paul Rivlin, 2009-02-09 This book examines the relationship between demographic growth and economic development in eight Arab countries Despite a slowdown in demographic growth as a result of the change in the age structure of the population the labor force is increasing rapidly In other parts of the world similar developments have enhanced economic growth In the Arab world however many of the opportunities presented by demographic transition are being lost resulting in serious threats to the political stability of the region The main reason for this is that the region has missed out on industrialization The book goes beyond conventional analysis to ask two closely related questions The first is why were governments so slow in tackling stability The second is why has the response been similar in apparently different economies Answers are provided using new literature in economics and economic history Global Employment Trends Claire Harasty,Dorothea Schmidt,International Labour Office,2003 Incorporating the most recent data available for 2002 this report analyses current labour market trends and examines the impact of the global economic downturn and post 11 September developments upon different world regions Covering Latin America and the Caribbean East Asia South East Asia the Middle East and North Africa and sub Saharan Africa the transition economies and industrial countries it focuses on the distinct labour market characteristics and challenges faced by each region and economic group It also traces factors contributing to the global employment decline such as the increase in informal sector employment the decrease in employment in information and communication technology as well as extensive jobs losses in the travel and tourism industries and the export and labour intensive manufacturing sectors Rebuilding Devastated Economies in the Middle East L. Binder,2007-10-29 This book analyzes the political obstacles to economic recovery and the economic consequences of democratic political reforms The contributors focus on rulers of shaky states where civil strife has caused economic devastation If rebuilding requires regime change are we asking these governments to put themselves out of business

Trade Agreements, Multifunctionality and EU Agriculture Eleni Kaditi,Johan F. M. Swinnen,2006 This volume is the result of research and exchange activities within the European Network of Agricultural and Rural Policy Research Institutes ENARPRI It synthesizes various analyses related to EU agricultural policies trade agreements and the issue of multifunctionality The book focuses on the impact of regional bilateral and multilateral trade agreements that the EU has concluded or is in the process of negotiating as well as on the interaction between EU policies and trade agreements in the context of multifunctionality and sustainable development Most of the trade agreements examined are extremely complex and impact not only efficiency and growth but also income and welfare distribution within the EU Special attention is given to the effects of possible WTO negotiation outcomes on the EU and third countries as well as on the impact of the EuroMed trade proposals and agreements on trade flows and economic development of the EU s trading partners in the Mediterranean

Arab Economic Integration Ahmed Galal, Bernard M. Hoekman, 2003-05-15 A Brookings Institution Press and the Egyptian Center for Economic Studies ECES publication Improving the economic performance of Arab countries is now more critical than ever The region faces high population growth rates rising unemployment and modest economic growth coupled with increasingly intense competition from emerging markets in eastern Europe Latin America and Asia Meeting these challenges requires finding ways to overcome political obstacles that impede socially beneficial economic reforms Despite fifty years of repeated attempts at Arab economic integration the results in terms of intraregional trade and investment flows have been very modest This book explains why and discusses possible ways forward The authors draw especially on the success of the European Union to assess the scope of Arab economic integration as an instrument for narrowing the persistent gap between the region's economic potential and its performance

EU Development Policy in a Changing World Andrew Mold, 2007 On many fronts European Union development policy is at a critical juncture in the face of new obstacles the EU has been forced to rethink trade security and its relationship with neighbors in North Africa and the Middle East Contentious questions have centered on the effects of EU expansion agricultural protectionism and development friendly trade policy in the EU and its member nations To answer these questions and others this expertly edited volume draws on analysis from well known specialists in fields such as public policy and economic development providing a critical overview of EU development policy and the challenges it must confront in an increasingly volatile and changing world

Knowledge Economies in the Middle East and North Africa Jean-Eric Aubert, Jean-Louis Reiffers, 2003-01-01 The Middle East and North Africa MENA region has been facing considerable economic challenges Left behind by the industrial revolution overly dependent on oil resources and on the fringes of the globalization process a number of MENA countries have embarked on structural reforms to overcome economic stagnation mounting unemployment and increasing poverty At the same time there is growing awareness worldwide that the knowledge revolution offers new opportunities for growth resulting from the availability of information and communication technologies and from the advent of a new form of global economic development rooted in the concept of the knowledge economy which is based on the creation acquisition distribution and use of knowledge This book developed from papers prepared for a World Bank sponsored conference assesses the challenges confronting the region's countries and analyzes their readiness for the knowledge economy based on a set of indicators It provides quantitative analysis to help benchmark the countries against worldwide knowledge economy trends identifies key implementation issues and presents relevant policy experiences The basic policy elements that underpin a strategy to prepare for a knowledge based economy are discussed including the renovation of education systems the creation of a climate conducive to innovation and the development of an efficient telecommunications infrastructure as the foundation of a new era The formulation of national visions and strategies is also discussed Examples from the region and other parts of the world illustrate the chapters A set of data that makes it possible to benchmark and position countries A readiness for the knowledge economy is presented in an appendix

The Lessons of Lebanon Samir Makdisi, 2004-02-26 Since 1945 over 200 intrastate conflicts have taken place in countries that achieved independence from colonial rule after the second world war The case of Lebanon offers a striking illustration of these interlocking influences on projects of national economic development The persistently sectarian nature of the country's political institutions the relatively poor quality of governance and the major civil war that engulfed the country from 1975 to 1990 together define not only the context in which the achievements and failures of Lebanese development must be assessed but also the continuing challenges that it must face in the era of globalization This book offers an in depth analysis of Lebanese economic development during the second half of the twentieth century with special emphasis on the civil war and its aftermath Makdisi offers a definitive assessment of the principal phases of national development since Lebanese independence in the 1940s and a study of those conditions requisite for sustainable development for Lebanon as for many other developing countries

Islamic Republic of Iran International Monetary Fund, 2007-03-01 Iran has received much attention from a geopolitical and regional standpoint but its economic challenges have not attracted a similar degree of interest With a population of 69 million considerable hydrocarbon resources a dynamic and entrepreneurial middle class and a relatively well educated labor force Iran's economic potential is considerable This volume takes stock of critical developments in the Iranian economy in recent years The study reviews the key issues and policy responses highlights the nature of the challenges ahead and draws implications for the next phase of reforms The authors conclude that major challenges remain although significant advances have been made in recent years in opening up the economy to international trade and foreign direct investment encouraging the private sector removing exchange restrictions reforming the tax system and enhancing macroeconomic management
