developed sophisticated models of comprehension and identified the particular assumptions that underlie comprehension mechanisms in precise analytical or mathematical detail The models offer a priori predictions about thought and behavior not merely ad hoc descriptions of data Indeed the field has evolved to a mature science The contributors to this volume collectively cover the major models of comprehension in the field of text and discourse Other books are either narrow covering only a single theoretical framework or do not focus on systematic modeling efforts In addition this book focuses on deep levels of understanding rather than language codes syntax and other shallower levels of text analysis As such it provides readers with up to date information on current psychological models specified in quantitative or analytical detail

between the word incarnate and the word proclaimed This book investigates the concept of logos in pagan Jewish and Christian thought with a view to elucidating the polyphonic functions which the word acquired when used in theological discourse Edwards presents a survey of theological applications of the term Logos in Greek Jewish and Christian thought from Plato to Augustine and Proclus Special focus is placed on the relation of words to images in representation of divine realm the relation between the logos within reason and the logos without speech both in linguistics and in Christology the relation between the incarnate Word and the written text and the place of reason in the interpretation of revelation Bringing together materials which are rarely synthesized in modern study this book shows how Greek and biblical thought part company in their appraisal of the capacity of reason to grasp the nature of God and how in consequence verbal revelation plays a more significant role in biblical teaching Edwards shows how this entailed the rejection of images in Jewish and Christian thought and how the manifestation in flesh of Christ as the living word of God compelled the church to reconsider both the relation of word to image and the interplay between the logos within and the written logos in the formulation of Christian doctrine
