Watson,2008-10-03 In 1882 Kano opened his Kodokan dojo in Tokyo where he taught jujutsu to his first class of nine students His choice of the name Kodokan symbolizes precocity in one so young and is highly significant for it means the institute where one is guided along the road to follow in life that is to say a road that one travels as a means of self cultivation which Kano regarded as the optimum way to live ones life This cultivation however can only be attained following long years of training made with vigorous exertion in an effort to reach the ultimate goal self perfection At the age of twenty four Kano abruptly gave up the teaching of this ancient and altogether brutal activity and never taught jujutsu again In his attempt to create for the modern age a non violent spiritually inspiring antagonistic art he carried out research on several styles of jujutsu Primarily in the interests of both safety and practicality he altered and added his own devices to the techniques that he was later to incorporate into his newly conceived system of skills which he named Kodokan judo In lectures Kano often stated the following The ultimate object of studying judo is to train and cultivate body and mind through practice in attack and defense and by thus mastering the essentials of the art to attain perfection of oneself and bring benefits to the world He had sought to create in judo therefore something positive out of something largely negative Judo Memoirs of Jigoro Kano Brian N. International Sport: A Bibliography, 2000 Richard William Cox,2013-10-23 There has been an explosion in the quantity of sports history literature published in recent years making it increasingly difficult to keep abreast of developments The annual number of publications has increased from around 250 to 1 000 a year over the last decade This is due in part to the fact that during the late 1980s and 90s many clubs leagues and governing bodies of sport have celebrated their centenaries and produced histories to mark this occasion and commemorate their achievements It is also the result of the growing popularity and realisation of the importance of sport history research within academe This international bibliography of books articles conference proceedings and essays in the English language is a one stop for the sports historian to know what is new

Judo & Life Brian N. Watson,2019-01-22 The three body mind relationship goals that Jigoro Kano advised his judo students to aspire to namely to perfect themselves physically intellectually and morally are all aimed at the same objective self improvement The first goal is perhaps the easiest and the one that many judokas achieve by gaining a dan grade after a few years training and perhaps by winning a few medals along the way The next two goals are psychological in nature and usually take longer to attain The intellectual goal is focused on educating oneself for what one wishes to become in life whether it be an engineer a teacher an accountant or whatever one s desire These goals however often require much book learning Because time and tide wait for no man one must read read and read some more in order to expand one s vocabulary and acquire the necessary knowledge The third goal is mainly focused on the moral lessons that one should have learnt after completion of the previous two These teachings should prove useful in helping one to succeed in one s endeavors and enable one to impart proper moral guidance to others especially the young when teaching judo
