Ramakrishnan, 2018-02-11 This volume an important contribution to dialogic and Bakhtin studies shows the natural fit between Bakhtin's ideas and the pluralistic culture of India to a global academic audience It is premised on the fact that long before principles of dialogism took shape in the Western world these ideas though not labelled as such were an integral part of intellectual histories in India Bakhtin's ideas and intellectual traditions of India stand under the same banner of plurality open endedness and diversity of languages and social speech types and therefore the affinity between the thinker and the culture seems natural Rather than being a mechanical import of Bakhtin's ideas it is an occasion to reclaim reactivate and reenergize inherent dialogicality in the Indian cultural historical and philosophical histories Bakhtin is not an incidental figure for he offers precise analytical tools to make sense of the incredibly complex differences at every level in the cultural life of India Indian heterodoxy lends well to a Bakhtinian reading and analysis and the papers herein attest to this The papers range from how ideas from Indo European philology reached Bakhtin through a circuitous route to responses to Bakhtin's thought on the carnival from the philosophical perspectives of Abhinavagupta to a Bakhtinian reading of literary texts from India The volume also includes an essay on translation as dialogue an issue central to multilingual cultures and on inherent dialogicality in the long intellectual traditions in India Memoirs, 1903 The Memoirs of Princess Dashkova Ekaterina R. Repossessing the World Helen M. Buss, 2006-01-01 Why does it seem as if everyone is writing memoirs and particularly women The current popularity of memoir verifies the common belief that we each have a story to tell And we do especially women Memoirs are not only representations of women s personal lives but also of their desire to repossess important parts of our culture in which women s stories have not mattered Beginning with her own motivations for writing memoirs Helen M Buss examines the many kinds of memoir written by contemporary women memoirs about growing up memoirs about traumatic events about relationships about work In writing memoirs these women publicly assert that their lives have mattered They reshape the memoir a form as old as the middle ages and as young as today into a social discourse that blends the personal with the political the self with the significant other literature with history and fiction with autobiography and essay Buss urges readers to use their reading experience to help themselves understand and write the significance of their own lives Repossessing the World is the first book length critical inquiry into women s use of a form that has often been dismissed as less important than autobiography less professional than the novel and less intellectual than the formal essay Buss demonstrates that the memoir makes its own art not only through selective borrowing from these genres but also through the unique way that the tripartite narrative voice of the memoir constructs the personal and public experience of the memorist as significant to our cultural moment
