

MAP - NATIVE AMERICAN ORIGINS AND LANDS

Label and color the map to show these:

Migration Route From Asia - The earliest ancestors of the Indians crossed to North America from northern Asia between 11,000 and 40,000 years ago.

Today the Bering Strait separates the continents. During the last Ice Age, however, when the level of the sea was lower, Asia and North America were connected by a strip of land.

(Show the route from Asia on the small North Polar Projection map also.)

Pacific Ocean

Atlantic Ocean

Route of Columbus in 1492

Label the map to show these selected Native American groups and places:

Aztec - The great civilization centered at what is now Mexico City, called by the Aztecs Tenochtitlan. They developed an accurate calendar and a form of writing with pictures. Their religion demanded human sacrifice to the sun, which the Aztecs considered to be a god.

Inca - The largest of the New World empires, with roads that stretched thousands of miles in South America. The Inca set up their capital at Cuzco in the 12th century.

Maya - A large civilization that rose on the Yucatan Peninsula in Central America, but faded after 900 A.D.

Pueblo - A group of Indian tribes in what is now the southwest U.S. Descended from the prehistoric Anasazi Indians, they built multistory houses from sun-dried bricks called adobe.

Cahokia - The most important city of the Mississippian civilization, famous for building huge earth mounds topped by religious temples. The civilization collapsed by 1500 A.D.

Creek - A group of several tribes in what is now the southeastern part of the U.S. The Creeks lived in about 50 permanent towns, and played the game now called lacrosse. Creek women raised maize (corn), squash, and other crops.

Iroquois - A confederation, or alliance, of five (later six) Native American groups living in the woodlands of what is now upper New York State. The Iroquois are famous for their "long houses," well-kept villages, and system of government.

Inuit - Also known as Eskimos, they adapted in creative ways to the cold and harsh environment of the far North.
