Fatal Words Communication Clashes And Aircraft Crashes:

Fatal Words Steven Cushing, 1997-05-15 On March 27 1977 583 people died when KLM and Pan Am 747s collided on a crowded foggy runway in Tenerife the Canary Islands The cause a miscommunication between the pilot and the air traffic controller The pilot radioed We are now at takeoff meaning that the plane was lifting off but the tower controller misunderstood and thought the plane was waiting on the runway In Fatal Words Steven Cushing explains how miscommunication has led to dozens of aircraft disasters and he proposes innovative solutions for preventing them He examines ambiguities in language when aviation jargon and colloquial English are mixed when a word is used that has different meanings and when different words are used that sound alike To remedy these problems Cushing proposes a visual communication system and a computerized voice mechanism to help clear up confusing language Fatal Words is an accessible explanation of some of the most notorious aircraft tragedies of our time and it will appeal to scholars in communications linguistics and cognitive science to aviation experts and to general readers Decision Making in

Aviation Don Harris, 2017-07-05 Decision making pervades every aspect of life people make hundreds of decisions every day The vast majority of these are trivial and without a right or wrong answer In some respects there is also nothing extraordinary about pilot decision making It is only the setting that is different the underlying cognitive processes are just the same However it is the context and the consequences of a poor decision which serve to differentiate aeronautical decision making Decisions on the flight deck are often made with incomplete information and while under time pressure The implications for inadequate performance is much more serious than in many other professions Poor decisions are implicated in over half of all aviation accidents This volume contains key papers published over the last 25 years providing an overview of the major paradigms by which aeronautical decision making has been investigated Furthermore decision making does not occur in isolation It is a joint function of the flight tasks knowledge equipment on the flight deck and other stressors In this volume of collected papers works from leading authors in the field consider all these aspects of aeronautical decision making

Mapping Biology Knowledge K. Fisher, J.H. Wandersee, D.E. Moody, 2006-04-11 Mapping Biology Knowledge addresses two key topics in the context of biology promoting meaningful learning and knowledge mapping as a strategy for achieving this goal Meaning making and meaning building are examined from multiple perspectives throughout the book In many biology courses students become so mired in detail that they fail to grasp the big picture Various strategies are proposed for helping instructors focus on the big picture using the need to know principle to decide the level of detail students must have in a given situation The metacognitive tools described here serve as support systems for the mind creating an arena in which learners can operate on ideas They include concept maps cluster maps webs semantic networks and conceptual graphs These tools compared and contrasted in this book are also useful for building and assessing students content and cognitive skills The expanding role of computers in mapping biology knowledge is also explored Group Interaction in High Risk

Environments Rainer Dietrich, Traci Michelle Chhildress, 2017-03-02 What governs the way in which people work together and handle technology in high risk environments The understanding of decision making communication and the other dimensions of team interaction within aircrews and other teams in highly stressful situations is based on a multitude of diverse factors each with its own literature and individual studies This book is about how teams function in just such situations providing a uniquely integrated and interdisciplinary account of the dynamics and main explanatory factors of team interaction under high workload The book stems from the interdisciplinary research project Group Interaction in High Risk Environments GIHRE a Collegium of the Gottlieb Daimler and Karl Benz Foundation The goals of the project and therefore the book are to investigate analyze and understand the behavior of professional groups working in high risk environments and to develop practical suggestions for enhancing performance A central focus of this book is how groups in these professions deal with the factors that can threaten the safety and effectiveness of their task performance whether these factors are part of the environment or part of the team itself Four representative workplaces were investigated in three broad settings in aviation the cockpit of a commercial airliner in medicine the operating room and the intensive care unit of a hospital in nuclear power the control room of a nuclear power plant The international and interdisciplinary composition of the Collegium ensures the book features a variety of different methodological and conceptual approaches which are brought to bear at both theoretical and practical levels Readers working in all related fields will find value in the case descriptions the academic synthesis of the similarities between them and ways to approach new challenges specialists in applied psychology human factors and technical management will gain new insights Attitude or Latitude? Graham R. Braithwaite, 2017-03-02 Australia has an enviable record for airline safety No one has ever died in an accident involving a commercial jet aircraft in Australia The reasons behind this have been the source of much speculation and theories tend to focus on issues related to the natural environment and even luck However with human error being present in arguably 100% of aircraft accidents it seems reasonable that a good safety record is at least partly the consequence of human intervention This text uses Australian aviation as a case study of a safe system to explore the interactions between the natural operational and human environments Based on doctoral research including a major survey of pilot and air traffic controller perceptions the book is unusual in that it looks at positive examples in safety rather than taking the traditional reactive approach to safety deficiencies Engineering Psychology and Cognitive Ergonomics Don Harris, 2020-03-26 This book is the third in the series and describes some of the most recent advances and examines emerging problems in engineering psychology and cognitive ergonomics It bridges the gap between the academic theoreticians who are developing models of human performance and practitioners in the industrial sector responsible for the design development and testing of new equipment and working practices English in Global Aviation Eric Friginal, Elizabeth Mathews, Jennifer Roberts, 2019-11-14 Taking readers step by step through the major issues surrounding the use of English in the global aviation industry this book provides a clear

Dialog Theory for Critical Argumentation Douglas N. Walton, 2007-09-19 Because of the need to devise systems for electronic communication on the internet multi agent computing is moving to a model of communication as a structured conversation between rational agents For example in multi agent systems an electronic agent searches around the internet and collects certain kinds of information by asking questions to other agents Such agents also reason with each other when they engage in negotiation and persuasion It is shown in this book that critical argumentation is best represented in this framework by the model of reasoned argument called a dialog in which two or more parties engage in a polite and orderly exchange with each other according to rules governed by conversation policies In such dialog argumentation the two parties reason together by taking turns asking questions offering replies and offering reasons to support a claim They try to settle their disagreements by an orderly conversational exchange that is partly adversarial and partly collaborative
