conformity seemed the key to happiness for a young boy who always felt different. When Rich was seven years old his parents separated at a time when divorce was still tantamount to scandal and thereafter he and his younger sister were labeled children from a broken home. Bouncing from school to school and increasingly lonely, Rich became terrified of the dark and the uncertainty of his future. But there was one thing in his life that made him sublimely happy: the Broadway theater. Rich's parents were avid theatergoers and in happier times they would listen to the brand new recordings of South Pacific, Damn Yankees and The Pajama Game over and over in their living room. When his mother's remarriage brought about turbulent changes, Rich took refuge in these same records, re-creating the shows in his imagination scene by scene. He started collecting Playbills, studied fanatically the theater listings in The New York Times and Variety, and cut out ads to create his own miniature marquees. He never imagined that one day he would be the Times's chief theater critic. Eventually, Rich found a second home at Washington's National Theatre, where as a teenager he was a ticket taker and was introduced not only to the backstage magic he had dreamed of for so long, but to a real-life cast of charismatic and eccentric players who would become his mentors and friends. With humor and eloquence, Rich tells the triumphant story of how the aspirations of a stagestruck young boy became a lifeline propelling him toward the itinerant family of theater, whose romantic denizens welcomed him into the colorful fringes of Broadway during its last glamorous era. Every once in a while a grand spectacle comes along that introduces its audiences to characters and scenes that will resound in their memories long after the curtain has gone down.

Ghost Light Frank Rich's beautifully crafted childhood memoir is just such an event. The Cleaver's Didn't Live on Our Street J. V. Trott, J.V. Trott, 2009-12. The Cleavers Didn't Live on Our Street chronicles one man's tales of growing up on the other side of the tracks in Windsor, Ontario, Canada, where father didn't always know best and the Cleavers never came to visit. J. V. Trott, a former humor columnist, shares his witty pie in the face childhood reflections that illustrate his innate ability to laugh at his family's antics even as they co-existed in the sticks without a refrigerator, furnace, telephone, or car. His essays detail once-in-a-lifetime experiences such as building a Christmas tree from scratch, celebrating Thanksgiving with a best friend on the menu, taking driving lessons in a garbage truck, inviting a drunken Santa to spend Christmas Eve with the children, and babysitting in a tomato field. As Trott cleverly illustrates the value of family and the importance of humor, his anecdotes will transport others back to a time when a previous generation both lived and laughed through their own set of unique challenges. Utilizing humor, emotion, and wit, John engages the reader with his many hilarious, sentimental, and sometimes painful anecdotes from his childhood memories. His family stories will remind you of your own childhood adventures and misadventures.
