Fathering At Risk Helping Nonresidential Fathers:

Fathering At Risk James R. Dudley, PhD, Glenn Stone, PhD, 2001-07-26 This book profiles three groups of nonresidential fathers: teens, older fathers, and unmarried or divorced fathers. It promotes a fuller understanding of their problems and offers an array of strategies for involving them in their children's lives. Utilizing a strengths perspective, the authors move beyond the realm of theory to present specific intervention strategies that have helped many diverse groups of fathers and potential fathers. Throughout, case examples illustrate key program issues. Discussion questions at the end of each chapter and reflection questions throughout promote integration of key concepts. A resource section is included with contact information for various fathering programs, other relevant resources, and a website directory. Father-Daughter Relationships Linda Nielsen, 2012

How fathers affect their daughters' social, academic, intellectual, athletic, and psychological development is then considered. Factors that can weaken father-daughter relationships, such as divorce, including various theoretical perspectives, are explored in chapters 5 and 6. Father-daughter relationships of racial or ethnic minorities and an array of potentially destructive situations that affect these relationships are the focus of chapters 7 and 8. The impact of fathers who are incarcerated, abusive, alcoholics, gay, or sperm donors are considered. The book concludes with suggestions on where we go from here.

Fathering Annie Devault, Gilles Forget, Diane Dubeau, 2015-11-26 In the past few decades, researchers and practitioners have moved away from the idea of fatherhood as a single monolithic concept. Examining the challenges of vulnerable fathers, such as those in poverty or in prison, they have developed valuable new strategies for cultivating the positive involvement of fathers in the lives of their children. Drawing on the innovative work of Prospère, a Quebec organization that brought together fathers, university researchers, and health and social service practitioners, Fathering details innovative approaches that support positive father involvement. It provides numerous examples of strategies and interventions with fathers, lessons learned from these practices on how to better support vulnerable fathers and families, and in-depth information on ways of designing, implementing, evaluating, and disseminating the results of participatory action research (PAR), a methodology which put fathers at the heart of the project's decision making.

Engaging and Working with African American Fathers Latrice S. Rollins, 2020-12-30 Engaging and Working with African American Fathers: Strategies and Lessons Learned challenges traditional and historic practices and policies that have systematically excluded fathers and contributed to social and health disparities among this population. With chapters written primarily by African American women drawing on years of research, interviews, and practical experience with this demographic, each section explores current evidence on engagement approaches, descriptions of agencies and programs addressing specific issues, fathers' face and case studies documenting typical clients and approaches to addressing their diverse needs. Offering an expansive overview of issues affecting African American fathers, the book explores such important topics as public child and mental health, education, parenting, employment, and public initiatives among others. Engaging and Working with African American

Taylor, Margaret C. Wang, 2012-12-06. A number of societal risks pose serious challenges to families' well-being, many of which cut across divisions of class and race. These challenges include changes in the labor market and economy, the increasing participation of mothers in the labor force, the changing nature of family structure, and the composition of households, and the increase in the number of immigrant families. Key institutions in the lives of families, including places of employment and schools, can play a significant role in fostering families' capacity to adapt to the potential challenges they face. Resilience Across Contexts: Family Work, Culture, and Community presents papers written by leading scholars in varied disciplines, including economics, developmental and educational psychology, education, and sociology, discussing factors that influence resilience development. The authors' research focuses on emerging issues that have significant implications for policy and practice in such areas as employment and new technologies, maternal employment and family development, family structure and family life, immigration, migration, acculturation, and education of children and youth, and social and human services delivery. The book's overall goal is to take stock of what is known from research and practice on some of the challenges facing children and families, for policy development and improvement of practices.
