Edward Day, Ann Gordon, 2020-03-03 An antidote to the culture of fear that dominates modern life From moral panics about immigration and gun control to anxiety about terrorism and natural disasters Americans live in a culture of fear While fear is typically discussed in emotional or poetic terms as the opposite of courage or as an obstacle to be overcome it nevertheless has very real consequences in everyday life Persistent fear negatively effects individuals decision making abilities and causes anxiety depression and poor physical health Further fear harms communities and society by corroding social trust and civic engagement Yet politicians often effectively leverage fears to garner votes and companies routinely market unnecessary products that promise protection from imagined or exaggerated harms Drawing on five years of data from the Chapman Survey of American Fears which canvasses a random national sample of adults about a broad range of fears Fear Itself offers new insights into what people are afraid of and how fear affects their lives The authors also draw on participant observation with Doomsday preppers and conspiracy theorists to provide fascinating narratives about subcultures of fear Fear Itself is a novel wide ranging study of the social consequences of fear ultimately suggesting that there is good reason to be afraid of fear itself

Fear Joanna Bourke, 2015-02-05 Fear is one of the most basic and most powerful of all the human emotions Sometimes it is hauntingly specific flames searing patterns on the ceiling a hydrogen bomb a terrorist More often anxiety overwhelms us from some source within there is an irrational panic about venturing outside a dread of failure a premonition of doom In this astonishing book we encounter the fears and anxieties of hundreds of British and American men women and children From fear of the crowd to agoraphobia from battle experiences to fear of nuclear attack from cancer to AIDS this is an utterly original insight into the mindset of the twentieth century from one of most brilliant historians and thinkers of our time

Landscapes of Fear Yi-Fu Tuan, 2013-01-02 To be human is to experience fear but what is it exactly that makes us fearful Here is one geographer s striking exploration of our landscapes of fear as they change throughout our lives and have changed throughout history Yi fu Tuan investigates landscapes of the natural environment which are threatening and landscapes filled with the dark imageries of the mind fears of drought flood famine and disease shared by all members of a community and fears of the particular ghosts which haunt the individual imagination In this lucidly written ground breaking survey Professor Tuan delves into many cultures and reaches back into our prehistory to discover what is universal and what is particular in our inheritance of fear Starting with fear in animals he raises and explores a variety of questions What is specifically human about fear Is there or has there ever been a fearless society Professor Tuan examines the most specific forms fear takes in the mind of the child among hunters and agriculturists inside the walls of a medieval Chinese city among Navaho Indians and American immigrants He explores the ways in which authorities create landscapes of terror to instill fear in their own populations and he probes that most basic of all contradictions between the need for human security and the fear of human nature Professor Tuan particularly emphasizes fear To do this we must pick our way between two powerful tendencies to control and to cure the Scylla and Charybdis of our culture These tendencies show themselves constantly in words like manage handle overcome conquer dispel banish fix By regarding fear as a pathology to control or cure we assume that life without its presence is possible normal or even desirable But once we accept fear as a habitual acquaintance in an imaginative meaningful life we can begin to cultivate a conversation with it rather than engage it in a fight From A Conversation with Fear formerly titled In the Yikes Zone The Fear Factor
