Historical Archaeology of the Irish Diaspora Stephen A. Brighton, 2009 Between 1845 and 1852 a watershed event in Ireland's history the Great Hunger forced more than one million starved and dispossessed people most of them poor tenant farmers to leave their native country for the shores of the United States Further weakened by the arduous voyage across the Atlantic Ocean many sought refuge in the harbor cities in which they landed Not surprisingly Irish immigrants counted as one quarter of New York City's population during the 1850s In Historical Archaeology of the Irish Diaspora Stephen A Brighton places Irish and Irish American material culture within a broad historical context including the waves of immigration that preceded the Famine and the development of the Irish American communities that followed it He meticulously details the archaeological research connected with excavations at two pre Famine sites in County Roscommon Ireland and with several immigrant tenements located in the Five Points Manhattan and the Dublin section of nearby Paterson New Jersey Using this transnational approach to link artifacts and ceramics found in rural Ireland with those discovered in sites in the urban northeastern United States Brighton also employs contemporary diaspora studies to illustrate how various factions sustained a distinct homeland connection even as the Irish were first alienated from and then gradually incorporated into American society With more than forty million Americans claiming Irish ancestry fully understanding Ireland's traumatic history and its impact on the growth of the United States remains a vital task for researchers on both sides of the Atlantic Brighton's study of lived experience follows a fascinating historical path that will aid scholars in a variety of disciplines

Consumer Choice in Historical Archaeology S.M. SpencerWood,2013-06-29 Historical archaeology has made great strides during the last two decades Early archaeological reports were dominated by descriptions of features and artifacts while research on artifacts was concentrated on studies of topology technology and chronology Site reports from the 1960s and 1970s commonly expressed faith in the potential artifacts had for aiding in the identifying socioeconomic status differences and for understanding the relationships between the social classes in terms of their material culture An emphasis was placed on the presence or absence of porcelain or teaware as an indication of social status These were typical features in site reports written just a few years ago During this same period advances were being made in the study of food bone as archaeologists moved away from bone counts to minimal animal counts and then on to the costs of various cuts of meat Within the last five years our ability to address questions of the relationship between material culture and socioeconomic status has greatly expanded The essays in this volume present efforts toward measuring expenditure and consumption patterns represented by commonly recovered artifacts and food bone These patterns of consumption are examined in conjunction with evidence from documentary sources that provide information on occupations wealth levels and ethnic affiliations of those that did the consuming One of the refreshing aspects of these papers is that the authors are not afraid of documents and their use of them is not limited to a role of confirmation

Charting the Emerging Field of Japanese Diaspora Archaeology

Douglas E. Ross, Koji Lau-Ozawa, 2023-04-29 This book examines the Japanese diaspora from the historical archaeology perspective drawing from archaeological data archival research and often oral history and explores current trends in archaeological scholarship while also looking at new methodological and theoretical directions The chapters include research on pre War rural labor camps or villages in the US as well as research on western Canada British Columbia Peru and the Pacific Islands Hawai i and Tinian incorporating work on understudied urban and cemetery sites One of the main themes explored in the book is patterns of cultural persistence and change whether couched in terms of maintenance of tradition Americanization or the formation of dual identities Other themes emerging from these chapters include consumption agency stylistic analysis community lifecycles social networks diaspora and transnationalism gender and sexuality Also included are discussions of trauma racialization displacement labor heritage and community engagement Some are presented as fully formed interpretive frameworks with substantial supporting data while others are works in progress or tentative attempts to push the boundaries of our field into innovative new territory This book is of interest to students and researchers in historical archaeology anthropology sociology of migration diaspora studies and historiography Previously published in International Journal of Historical Archaeology Volume 25 issue 3 September 2021

The Oxford Handbook of the Archaeology of Childhood Sally Elizabeth Ellen Crawford, Dawn M. Hadley, Gillian B. The Presented Past B. L. Molyneaux, P. G. Stone, 2003-09-02 The Presented Past is concerned with the differences between the comparatively static well understood way in which the past is presented in schools museums and at historic sites compared to the approaches currently being explored in contemporary archaeology It challenges the all too frequent representation of the past as something finished understood and objective rather than something that is constructed and therefore open to co existing interpretations and constant re interpretation Central to the book is the belief that the presentation of the past in school curricula and in museum and site interpretations will benefit from a greater use of non documentary sources derived from archaeological study and oral histories The book suggests that a view of the past incorporating a larger body of evidence and a wider variety of understanding will help to invigorate the way history is taught The Presented Past will be of interest to teachers archaeologists cultural resource managers in fact anyone who is concerned with how the past is presented
