The Economic Impact of Public Support to Agriculture Virgil Ball,Roberto Fanfani,Luciano Gutierrez,2010-07-27 Despite a gradual and sustained decline in the contribution of agriculture to the economies of the member countries of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD the sector remains socially and politically important Although agriculture accounts for less than 2% of the gross domestic product of the OECD countries it occupies over 35% of their total land area Predominantly rural regions where agriculture remains particularly important contain almost one quarter of the population of OECD countries The past quarter century has witnessed significant changes in agricultural policies in OECD countries Although total support remains high a shift has taken place from price linked measures to direct income support most notably in the European Union Policies have been adapted to meet pressing social concerns such as ensuring food security and improving environmental quality OECD countries face major economic issues due to the ageing of their populations and the need to adapt to globalization and increasing competition from emerging economies Continued pressure to reform agricultural policies will be exerted by the need to economize on the use of scarce public resources At the same time agriculture faces new challenges generated by climate change the greening of the economy increasing scarcity of energy and water and the demands placed on the food system by an expanding world population greater energy security by reducing dependence on foreign petroleum is a goal of U S energy policy The Energy Independence and Security Act calls for a Renewable Fuel Standard RFS 2 which mandates that the U S increase the volume of biofuel that is blended into transportation fuel from 9 to 36 billion gallons from 2008 to 2022 This report examines how meeting the RFS 2 would affect various components of the U S economy If biofuel production advances with cost reducing
