Lawrence, C. Thirtle, 2001-05-14 This invaluable collection compares the relatively unsuccessful economic development of Sub-Saharan Africa with that of the successful Asian economies especially the Asian tigers It covers three main areas of comparison the lessons for Africa from the Asian experience secondly the comparisons of various aspects of economic development in Africa and Asia and finally convergence how far the laggard economies are catching up with or diverging away from each other Africa, Asia, and South America Since 1800 A. J. H. Latham, 1995 A reference for graduate and undergraduate students presenting the bibliographic details and sometimes describing and evaluating the content of over 5 000 books in English most published since 1945 and many quite recently but also some earlier works of enduring importance A section of works on all three continents is followed by sections on each which first consider the continent as a whole then each country usually by chronological periods and topics such as economics politics and society Indexed only by author and editor but the table of contents is detailed enough to provide adequate access Distributed in the US by St Martin's Press Annotation copyright Book News Inc Portland Or Agricultural Development in Asia and Africa Jonna P. Estudillo, Yoko Kijima, Tetsushi Sonobe, 2022-12-01 This Open Access book explores the multifaceted nature of agricultural and rural development in Asia and examines the extent to which the Asian experience is being replicated in contemporary Africa This volume compiles the works of top scholars who provided analyses and evidences from household level surveys collected for many years in several parts of Asia and Africa The most important finding presented in this book is that African agricultural development has evolved following the pathways of Asian agricultural development. The common pathways are borrowed technology from abroad and adaptive research in rice farming, secured property rights on natural resources, adoption of ICTs, investments in human capital including training, and launching of the high value agriculture. In both continents, agricultural development started in the crop sector which had a strong tendency to induce the dynamic development of other sectors in rural areas.

The Economies of Africa and Asia in the Inter-war Depression (Routledge Revivals) Ian Brown, 2014-11-13. The great inter war depression has long been seen as an unprecedented economic disaster for the peoples of the non European world. This book with its detailed assessment of the impact of the depression on the economies of Africa and Asia challenges the orthodox view and is essential reading for those with a teaching or research interest in the modern economic history of those continents. Established specialists in the modern economic history of parts of Africa or Asia put forward a number of revisionist arguments. They show that some economies were left essentially unscathed by the depression and that for many export dependent peasant communities which did face a severe drop in cash income as world commodity prices collapsed from the late 1920s there was a range of important responses and reactions by which they could defend their economic welfare. For many peasant communities the depression was not a disaster but an opportunity.
