Electronic Whistle Stops The Impact Of The Internet On American Politics:

Electronic Whistle-Stops Gary W. Selnow, 1998-03-25 Fifty years ago the political whistle stop tour was thus named because trains blew their whistles twice when making unscheduled stops in backwater towns Like its distant cousin the electronic whistle stop brings the candidate's message directly to the people but with one outstanding difference the new whistle stop offers politicians an accuracy efficiency and success at voter persuasion unimaginable to by earlier whistle stoppers such as Harry Truman As Selnow shows American political campaigns have an extraordinary affinity for electronic devices They have seized upon electronic bulletin boards home pages and electronic libraries Since political campaigns are communication campaigns Selnow concludes that candidates who successfully inform persuade enlighten and even confuse voters will win votes Selnow also examines the debate between those who argue that new technologies have improved efficiency and those who believe that the innovations have affected society in other ways Scholars and students of American political communication must read this book the lively style will also make it exciting reading for anyone interested in this new political tool

Making the News Amber E. Boydstun,2022-12-22 Media attention can play a profound role in whether or not officials act on a policy issue but how policy issues make the news in the first place has remained a puzzle Why do some issues go viral and then just as quickly fall off the radar How is it that the media can sustain public interest for months in a complex story like negotiations over Obamacare while ignoring other important issues in favor of stories on balloon boy With Making the News Amber Boydstun offers an eye opening look at the explosive patterns of media attention that determine which issues are brought before the public At the heart of her argument is the observation that the media have two modes an alarm mode for breaking stories and a patrol mode for covering them in greater depth While institutional incentives often initiate alarm mode around a story they also propel news outlets into the watchdog like patrol mode around its policy implications until the next big news item breaks What results from this pattern of fixation followed by rapid change is skewed coverage of policy issues with a few receiving the majority of media attention while others receive none at all Boydstun documents this systemic explosiveness and skew through analysis of media coverage across policy issues including in depth looks at the waxing and waning of coverage around two issues capital punishment and the war on terror Making the News shows how the seemingly unpredictable day to day decisions of the newsroom produce distinct patterns of operation with implications good and bad for national politics

Robertson,Mary Christine Banwart,Lynda Lee Kaid,2005-01-01 A poll as recently as 2000 revealed that a third of the population thinks there are general characteristics about women that make them less qualified to serve as president As the public and the media rely on long held stereotypes female candidates must focus even harder on the way they want to define their own image through traditional mass media such as television and new forms such as the internet Gender and Candidate Communication digs deep into the campaigns of the last decade sifting through thousands of ads websites and newspaper articles to find out how successful candidates have been in breaking down these gender stereotypes Among their findings are that female candidates dress more formally smile more act tougher when they can and prefer scare tactics to aggressive attack ads Gender and Candidate Communication also presents the most comprehensive systematic method yet for identifying and understanding self presentation strategies on the web The internet may be the medium of the future but Bystrom has found that coverage on the web tends to draw even more heavily on old stereotypes No close observer of campaigns gender or the internet will be able to ignore their findings
