

A N

E L E G Y,

To an Old BEAUTY.

IN vain, poor Nymph, to please our youthful fight

You sleep in Cream and Frontlets all the Night,
Your Face with Patches soil, with Paint repair, Dress with gay Gowns, and shade with foreign Hair.

If Truth in spite of Manners must be told,
Why really Fifty Five is something old.

Elegy in a Country Church-Yard and Other Poems Thomas Gray, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1909 edition Excerpt NOTES NOTES ON THE TRAVELER The first draft of The Traveler was some lines which Goldsmith wrote in 1755 when in Switzerland and enclosed in a letter to his brother Henry We do not know which lines these were but they were probably the introductory ones about his home and his brother and possibly the ones describing Switzerland Some years later this fragment with some changes and additions was shown to Dr Johnson who commended it and urged Goldsmith to complete the poem Dr Johnson suggested for it the title of The Philosophic Wanderer which Goldsmith had the good taste to reject though he accepted some of his friend s rather stately lines You will find on page seventeen of the Introduction an account of the writing and publication of The Traveler It came out in a quarto volume December 19 1764 dated 1765 and was the first of Goldsmith s works which bore his name on the title page Like all his other poems it was written slowly and polished with scrupulous care The early editions of The Traveler which he corrected are full of improvements changed words couplets whole passages The poem is written in the heroic couplet favored by Dryden Pope Johnson and other poets of the classical schools By examining the poem you will see that each line consists of ten syllables an unaccented one being regularly followed by an accented one the lines rhyme in couplets This meter is adapted to a formal rather precise style Goldsmith who marks the transition between classicism and romanticism in English poetry gave the classic meter a natural beauty a grace and charm which it had never had before According to the customs of the time the poem has a didactic theme the opinion that political institutions
