optimal use of that information postulated in many economic theories is therefore not possible The research methods used are mainly geared towards empirical research and there mostly towards survey research and experimentation Experimentation involves most often simulated behaviour in a laboratory which allows the experimental manipulation of possible causes of behaviour which would not be possible in real life Survey research is the most widely used instrument for investigating real world behaviour with all its caveats about establishing causal explanations Several introductory books e g Fumham Lea Tarpy van Raaij van Veldhoven Wiswede 1988 have appeared recently which try to give an overview of the field of economic psychology and which in varying degrees demonstrate the three foundations of economic psychology just mentioned Others have concentrated on certain subtopics such as the psychology of the labour market e g Baxter 1988 Pelzmann 1986 Economic Choice Theory John H. Multiple Criteria Decision Making Theory and Application G. Fandel, T. Gal, 2012-12-06 He consider a cone dominance problem given a preference cone  $LP$  and a set  $n \times R$  of available or feasible alternatives the problem is to identify the non dominated elements of  $X$  The nonzero elements of  $LP$  are assumed to model the dominance structure of the problem so that  $y \in X$  dominates  $x \in X$  if  $Y \cdot x \geq P$  for some nonzero  $p \in LP$  Consequently  $x \in X$  is nondominated if and only if  $x \cdot LP \cap n \times X \neq \emptyset$  He will also refer to nondominated points as efficient points in  $X$  with respect to  $LP$  and we will let  $EF(X, P)$  denote the set of such efficient points This cone dominance problem draws its roots from two separate but related origins The first of these is multi attribute decision making in which the elements of the set  $X$  are endowed with various attributes each to be maximized or minimized
