Emerging Infections in Asia Yichen Lu, Max Essex, Bryan Roberts, 2008-03-13 The number of people who live in Asia is greater than the total number of people who live in the rest of the world More than 160 cities in Asia have a population of at least one million people Thus when new infectious diseases threaten populations in Asia huge segments of the global population are at risk At the same time Asians are thoroughly integrated with the rest of the world providing skilled expertise and becoming trading partners in all continents Infectious diseases ordinarily show no preference for infection or disease according to race or ethnic background A few exceptions exist due to the host pathogen evolution that happened before the recent era of rapid travel Such exceptions occur usually because the infectious agent was newly introduced to one population only after having existed and evolved for hundreds or thousands of years in a different population As air travel became popular in the last few generations of people it became increasingly difficult for populations to remain in isolation Thus in 2003 SARS in China rapidly became SARS in Canada Throughout history a major source of new infections of people has been old infections of animals For some such as Ebola or Lassa transmission to people is rare and self limiting though frighteningly lethal for the few unfortunate individuals who get infected And Ebola and Lassa are indigenous for Africa not Asia

Body and Tradition in Nineteenth-Century France William G. Pooley, 2019-12-05 The moorlands of Gascony are often considered one of the most dramatic examples of top down rural modernization in nineteenth century Europe From an area of open moors they were transformed in one generation into the largest man made forest in Europe Body and Tradition in Nineteenth Century France explores how these changes were experienced and negotiated by the people who lived there drawing on the immense ethnographic archive of Félix Arnaudin 1844 1921 The study places the songs stories and everyday speech that Arnaudin collected as well as the photographs he took in the everyday lives of agricultural workers and artisans It argues that the changes were understood as a gradual revolution in bodily experiences as men and women forged new working habits new sexual relations and new ways of conceiving of their own bodies Rather than merely presenting a story of top down reform this is an account of the flexibility and creativity of the cultural traditions of the working population William G Pooley tells the story of the folklorist Arnaudin and the men and women whose cultural traditions he recorded then uncovers the work carried out by Arnaudin to explore everyday speech about the body stories of werewolves and shapeshifters tales of animal cunning and exploitation and songs about love and courtship The volume focuses on the lives of a handful of the most talented storytellers and singers Arnaudin encountered showing how their cultural choices reflect wider patterns of behaviour in the region and across rural Europe
