Er entwickelt sie aus Begegnungen und Konstellationen philosophischer und theatraler Praktiken. Diese unterschiedlichen Diskursfelder, so zeigt der Autor, sind nicht nur im Wettstreit aufeinander bezogen oder schließen sich wechselseitig aus, sondern sie fließen immer wieder ineinander und eröffnen kreative Sphären des TheaterDenkens.

Space in America Klaus Benesch, Kerstin Schmidt, 2005. America's sense of space has always been tied to what Hayden White called the narrativization of real events. If the awe-inspiring manifestations of nature in America—Niagara Falls, Virginia's Natural Bridge, the Grand Canyon etc.—were often used as a foil for projecting utopian visions and idealizations of the nation's exceptional place among the nations of the world, the rapid technological progress and its concomitant appropriation of natural spaces served equally well as David Nye argues to promote the dominant cultural idiom of exploration and conquest. From the beginning, American attitudes towards space were thus utterly contradictory, if not paradoxical, a paradox that scholars tried to capture in such hybrid concepts as the middle landscape, Leo Marx's engineered New Earth, Cecelia Tichi's or the technological sublime. David Nye: Not only was America's concept of space paradoxical, it has always also been a contested terrain, a site of continuous social and cultural conflict. Many foundational issues in American history—the dislocation of Native and African Americans, the geo-political implications of nation building, immigration and transmigration, the increasing division and clustering of contemporary American society etc.—involve differing ideals and notions of space. Quite literally, space and its various ideological appropriations formed the arena where America's search for identity, national, political, cultural, has been staged. If American democracy, as Frederick Jackson Turner claimed, is born of free land, then its history may well be defined as the history of the fierce struggles to gain and maintain power over both the geographical, social and political spaces of America and its concomitant narratives. The number and range of topics, interests and critical approaches of the essays gathered here open up exciting new avenues of inquiry into the tangled, contentious relations of space in America. Topics include: Theories of Space, Landscape, Nature, Technoscape, Architecture, Urban Utopia, Literature, Performance, Film, Visual Arts.

Screening the Stage Bert Cardullo, 2006. This book examines the historical, cultural and aesthetic relationships between theater and film. As we enter the 21st century, almost all artists, students and critics working in theater will have had earlier and greater exposure to film than to theater. In fact, film has become central to the way in which we perceive and formulate stories, images, ideas and sounds. At the same time, film and video occupy an increasingly significant place in theater study, both for the adaptation of plays and for the documentation and preservation of theatrical performances. Yet far too often, theater and film artists, as well as educators, make the jump from one medium to the other without being fully aware of the ways in which the qualities of each medium affect content and artistic expression. This book is intended to fill such a gap by providing a theoretical and practical foundation for understanding the effect that film and drama have had and continue to have on each other's development. Moreover, this study provides a history of the relationship between drama and cinema starting with the pre cinematic late 19th century impulse towards capturing spectacular action on the stage and examining the artistic and commercial interaction between movies and plays both in popular and experimental work throughout the 20th century Important subjects treated in this book include stage versus screen acting the adaptation process itself the theatrical as well as the cinematic avant garde and the portability or adaptability of dramatic character

Roger Blin Mark Taylor-Batty, 2007 Roger Blin s career in the Arts was woven inextricably into the fabric of the Twentieth Century French Avant Garde First appearing in the films of Abel Gance Marcel Carné and Jean Cocteau his acting career led him to a close friendship and association with Antonin Artaud for whom he performed the function of assistant director He championed Samuel Beckett s En attendant Godot otherwise rejected unanimously by the French theatrical establishment was Jean Genet's director of choice and was long associated with artists and practitioners as diverse as Arthur Adamov, Jean Louis Barrault and Jacques Prévert. Marxist in outlook, Blin also sought to apply rigorous humanist principles to his art and delighted in the opportunities he enjoyed to disrupt and upturn the attitudes and complacencies of certain of his audiences. This book surveys all aspects of Blin's artistic output to consider and clarify his motivations, his ambitions and his aesthetic preferences. In doing so, the author hopes to offer perspectives on the methodologies that Blin employed and define the influence his work and his legacy has exerted on the French and World stage.

Structures of Influence Marilyn Johns Blackwell, 2020-05-01 This collection of essays featuring contributions from eminent Swedish and American Strindberg scholars addresses the question of how Strindberg's art collides and colludes ideologically and aesthetically with the literary doyens of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries in both the Scandinavian and the larger Western cultural context.
