Orpheus Nazli Eray, Robert Finn, 2006-09-01 Robert Finn's translation of Turkish author Nazli Eray's Orpheus makes available to the English language reader a rewriting of the myth from the perspective of Eurydice the wife of Orpheus. Eray's surrealistic version takes place in a hot resort town in contemporary Turkey. The setting of an archaeological dig gives a connection to the past and literally to the underworld. Found in the dig is a statue of the Roman emperor Hadrian who proceeds to offer an unusual perspective on modern life and values through mysterious letters carried by a messenger pigeon. Eray also comments on modernity as the city of Ankara emerges as a character in the novel's fantasy. Set in junta ruled Turkey of the 1980s, the novel takes its place as a crucial slice of Turkish literary history. Resonating with haunting references to the film Last Tango in Paris, the novel evolves as a mystery story with a humorous bent. Thus Eray illuminates her insatiable curiosity about other cultures, particularly those of the West. Finally, the style of the translation is simple and clear with crisp dialogue. Sibel Erol, professor of Turkish literature at New York University, has written an introduction that places this fantastic plot in a literary context as well as in understandable terms that relate to the reality of today's Turkey.

Siraaj Radwa Ashour, Barbara Romaine, 2007-11-01 Set in the late nineteenth century on a mythical island off the coast of Yemen, Radwa Ashour's Siraaj, an Arab tale, tells the poignant story of a mother and son as they are drawn inextricably into a revolt against their island's despotic sultan. Amina, a baker in the sultan's palace, anxiously awaits her son's return from a long voyage at sea, fearful that the sea has claimed Sa'd just as it did his father and grandfather. Sa'd left behind in Alexandria by his ship as the British navy begins an attack on the city, slowly begins to make his way home, witnessing British colonial oppression along the way. Sa'd's return brings Amina only a short-lived peace. The lessons he learned from the Egyptians' struggle against the British have radicalized him. When Sa'd learns the island's slave population is planning a revolt against the sultan's tyrannical rule, both he and Amina are soon drawn in. Beautifully rendered from Arabic into English by Barbara Romaine, Radwa Ashour's novella speaks of the unity that develops among varied peoples as they struggle against a common oppressor and illuminates the rich cultures of both the Arab and African inhabitants of the island. Sub-Saharan African culture is a subject addressed by few Arabic novelists, and Radwa Ashour's novella does much to fill that void. Fortune Told in Blood Davud Ghaffarzadegan, M.R. Ghanoonparvar, 2008-06-15 Amidst the Iran-Iraq War, two Iraqi soldiers find themselves stationed on an isolated mountain peak with orders to observe the enemy's troop movements. As they watch the brutal destruction brought about by the intelligence they have gathered, their loyalty to their country and each other is tested. As in all wars, both Iraq and Iran demonized each other as the war raged during the 1980s. In Fortune Told in Blood, written during the mid-1990s as Iran was recovering, Davud Ghaffarzadegan labors to undo the damage caused by this process. The author, an Iranian, writes from the Iraqi perspective, thus humanizing the enemy and challenging his reader to do so as well. A deft and economical storyteller, Davud Ghaffarzadegan has received considerable critical and popular acclaim in Iran, though his work has never before been translated into English M R Ghanoonparvar's exquisite translation remedies this oversight and expands the body of literature on the Iran Iraq War available to the West

Contemporary World Fiction Juris Dilevko, Keren Dali, Glenda Garbutt, 2011-03-17 This much needed guide to translated literature offers readers the opportunity to hear from learn about and perhaps better understand our shrinking world from the perspective of insiders from many cultures and traditions In a globalized world knowledge about non North American societies and cultures is a must Contemporary World Fiction A Guide to Literature in Translation provides an overview of the tremendous range and scope of translated world fiction available in English In so doing it will help readers get a sense of the vast world beyond North America that is conveyed by fiction titles from dozens of countries and language traditions Within the guide approximately 1 000 contemporary non English language fiction titles are fully annotated and thousands of others are listed Organization is primarily by language as language often reflects cultural cohesion better than national borders or geographies but also by country and culture In addition to contemporary titles each chapter features a brief overview of earlier translated fiction from the group The guide also provides in depth bibliographic essays for each chapter that will enable librarians and library users to further explore the literature of numerous languages and cultural traditions

Folktales from Syria Andrea Rugh, 2004-11-01 Syrian poet Samir Tahhan collected folktales from old men sitting outside their houses in Aleppo drinking tea Afraid these stories would disappear with the passing of this generation Tahhan also went to halls and events to hear professional storytellers and record their performances Anthropologist Andrea Rugh helped translate the resulting two volumes of stories from the original Arabic and wrote the informative introduction to this one volume collection Some of the tales appeared in rhyming verse in Arabic and some were based on events that are said to have actually taken place in Aleppo Rugh explains the concepts of the most popular types of Syrian story structures the gissa the hikaya and the hudutha With two of the poems the Arabic and the English are shown side by side in order to demonstrate the internal poetic structures of the original rhymes With their emphasis on morality and social values the tales will be familiar to Western audiences Another value for the reader is finding the accepted social values and behaviors that Arab adults try to inculcate in their younger generation often through complex characterizations Teasing out these meanings gives the reader an appreciation for the act of translation and hints of the power of the Arabic language in prose and poetry Professional illustrator Douglas Rugh has provided the book's black and white prints based on the stories and his experiences as a child growing up in the Middle East
