of low molecular weight constituents that affects their flavor color and overall acceptability. Thus generation of aroma via thermal processing and bioconversion is of utmost importance in food preparation. Furthermore, processing operations must be optimized in order to eliminate or reduce the content of antinutrients that are present in foods and retain their bioactive components. Therefore, while novel processing technologies such as freezing, irradiation, microwaving, high pressure treatment, and fermentation might be employed, control process conditions in a manner that both the desirable sensory attributes and wholesomeness of foods are safeguarded is essential. Obviously, methodologies should also be established to quantify the changes that occur in foods as a result of processing. This volume was developed from contributions provided by a group of internationally recognized lead scientists. Essentials of Food Science Vickie A. Vaclavik, Elizabeth W.

Christian, 2007-12-03 Essentials of Food Science covers the basics of foods, food science, and food technology. The book is meant for the non-major introductory course whether taught in the food science or nutrition/dietetics department. In previous editions, the book was organized around the USDA Food Pyramid, which has been replaced. The revised pyramid will now be mentioned in appropriate chapters only. Other updates include new photos, website references, and culinary alerts for culinary and food preparation students. Two added topics include RFID (Radio frequency ID) tags and trans fat disclosures. Includes updates on food commodities, optimizing quality, laws, and food safety. Home Science Sharda Gupta, Shubh Sadhna
