the motor car As cars became more affordable and more common after World War II advertisers fanned the competition for status refining their techniques as ownership became ever more widespread Sachs concludes by demonstrating that the triumphal procession of private motorization has in fact become an intrusion The grand dreams once attached to the automobile have aged Sachs appeals for the cultivation of new dreams born of the futility of the old ones dreams of a society liberated from progress in which location distance and speed are reconceived in more appropriately humane dimensions In his cultural analysis of the motor car in Germany Wolfgang Sachs starts from the assumption that the automobile is more than a means of transportation and that its history cannot be understood merely as a triumphant march of technological innovation
