The Police and

Society Victor E. Kappeler, Brian P. Schaefer, 2018-09-11 The most productive route to understanding the dynamic interrelationships of the police with society is to examine the recurring central themes in policing The articles in this anthology represent some of the best scholarship on compelling issues. Selected for both their complementary and competing natures, the articles serve as touchstones for one another, often challenging previous conceptions. Many selections question the methods by which information was acquired, the practices that evolved from that information, and the background assumptions behind the construction of practices. Some of the many issues and conflicts addressed in this collection include: What is the nature of the police role and function? Who benefits from police service? Who is harmed? How are public safety and social order secured while maintaining individual rights and freedoms? To what extent do our expectations about the police and society reflect our values and demands? Are the police a society unto themselves? Is policing at a critical crossroads? The editors assembled this volume with the goal of helping readers to identify underlying assumptions, to dissect how values influence inquiries, and to discover connections. A better understanding of the role of the police in society provides a solid foundation for assessing the efficacy of future police-society relationships.

Race and Public Administration Amanda Rutherford, Kenneth Meier, 2020-02-24

Issues of race permeate virtually every corner of policy creation and implementation in the United States, yet theoretically driven research on interactions of policy, race, and ethnicity rarely offers practical tools that can be readily applied by current and future civil servants, private contractors, or nonprofit boards. Arguing that scholarship can and should inform practice to address issues of equity in public affairs rather than overlook, ignore, or deny them, Race and Public Administration offers a much needed and accessible exploration of current and cutting edge research on race and policy. This book evaluates what contradictions, unanswered questions, and best or worst practices exist in conducting and understanding research that can provide evidence-based policy and management guidance to practitioners in the field. Individual chapters are written by established and emerging scholars and explore a wide range of policy areas, including public education, policing, health, and access to healthcare, digital governance, nonprofit diversity, and international contexts. Together, the chapters serve as a link between theoretically informed research in public administration and those students and professionals trained to work in the trenches of public administration. This book is ideally suited as a text for courses in schools of public administration, public policy, or nonprofit management and is required reading for those actively involved in policy analysis, creation, or evaluation. Chapter 1 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives (CC BY-NC-ND) 4.0 license.

Incarceration and Race in Michigan Lynn O. Scott, Curtis Stokes, 2019-12-01

State and local policies are key to understanding how to reduce prison populations. This anthology of critical and personal essays about the need to reform criminal justice policies that have led to mass incarceration provides a national perspective while remaining grounded in Michigan. Major components in this volume include a focus on current research on the impact of incarceration on minority groups, youth, and the mentally ill, and a focus on research on Michigan's leadership in the area of reentry. Changes in policy will require a change in the public's problematic images of incarcerated people. In this volume, academic research is combined with first person narratives and paintings from people who have been directly affected by incarceration to allow readers to form more personal connections with those who face incarceration At a time when much of the push to reduce prison populations is focused on the financial cost to states and cities this book emphasizes the broader social and human costs of mass incarceration Race and Representative Bureaucracy in American Policing Brandy A. Kennedy,Adam M. Butz,Nazita Lajevardi,Matthew J. Nanes,2017-06-09 This book examines issues of race and policing through the lens of representative bureaucracy theory According to representative bureaucracy theory demographic correspondence between government employees and the local population can lead to more favorable outcomes for minority groups It argues that police forces with higher minority composition will have more positive outcomes across measures such as fewer excessive force complaints and fewer fatal encounters with officers Additionally the book asserts that more representative forces will demonstrate responsiveness and accountability by implementing policies such as citizen review boards for excessive force complaints It does this by first providing a brief overview of issues surrounding race and policing in America documenting racial representation occurring in local police forces nationwide and exploring the potential causes and consequences of underrepresentation It concludes by discussing the implications of our findings and offer potential policy remedies and solutions that local law enforcements can pursue in order to reduce minority underrepresentation and improve policing outcomes Southern and Postcolonial Perspectives on Policing, Security and Social Order Roxana Pessoa incorporating insights from geography Race and Space s careful study of the differences of physical spaces gives rise to more complete explanations for social issues and variances in social movements Defund the Police Chris Cunneen,2023-03-31 The police are viewed as guardians of public safety and enforcers of the law How accurate is this Given endemic police violence which is often aimed at racialised and minoritised groups and the failure of many attempts at reform attention has turned to community generated models of support These include defunding the police and instead funding alternatives to criminalisation and incarceration This book is the first comprehensive overview of police divestment using international examples and case studies to reimagine community safety beyond policing and imprisonment Showcasing a range of practical examples this topical book will be relevant for academics policy makers activists and all those interested in the Black Lives Matter movement protest movements and the renewed interest in policing and abolitionism more generally
