Faversham Landmark Dog Of Manhattan:

Faversham - Landmark Dog of Manhattan Lillian M. Rappe, 2004-07 Having a puppy is one of the greatest joys in life. The unconditional love that one gets from dogs is unbelievable. Faversham was the cause of my living when my husband died. He was my constant companion and got really distressed when he saw me crying. Later when life improved, if Faversham got into some mischief, all I had to say was "Do you want Mummy to cry?" He would immediately stop, come near me, and put his huge paws on me. I still can't believe that a landlord and his underlings could play such dirty tricks. All I wanted to do was to rent an apartment and live peacefully with Faversham. LeFrak had only one decent person working for him, Jack Friedman. He told me how I was being used as an example to other tenants with pets. I shall be forever indebted to Major Koch for passing the Dog Law and Judge Sparks for seeing through the lies that Moskowich told me. Also many thanks to the neighbors who wrote lovely letters about Faversham and last but not least, Jolene Marion, Faversham's Attorney, who advised me and consoled me during the 14 months of trial and tribulation caused me by an unconscionable landlord. Recently I was at a party commemorating the 50th Anniversary of Queen Elizabeth's ascension to the throne, and a lady came up to me and said, "I hate to tell you, I can't remember your name, but I do remember your dog's name, Faversham." The lady was Dr. Linda Jacobson, Faversham's vet.

Gone Walkabout Michael Brandow, 2019-05-15 Pounding the pavements of downtown Manhattan for twenty years and always on the move, a gnarly scruffy-faced dog walker took time at the end of each day to keep a journal. Emptying his pockets of notes hastily scrawled on scraps of paper, matchbook covers, napkins, Chinese menus, leaves whatever he could grab to record fleeting impressions while in transit. Slowly he transcribed every detail, compiling this delightful tale about the dogs of average New Yorkers, the rich and famous or just plain rich. Woven with endearing accounts of the antics of his canine wards, this meandering stroll is as much about their humans. A voyeuristic look into the private lives of clients, an urban navigation manual, a playful social critique, all is exposed from this unique sidewalk perspective. A walk and tell story. The Nanny Diaries of a New York dog walker.
