

Happy 50th Birthday, Babar!

This facsimile of A. A. Milne's introduction to The Story of Babar was printed in the first English language editions of the book nearly fifty years ago. Like Milne's own Winnie-the-Pooh, Babar is now a character who needs no introduction.

Two years ago at a friend's house I was introduced to Babar and Celeste. They spoke French, but they spoke it with a charming English accent which saved me from all embarrassment. I was so charmed that I managed to get them into my house and with no trouble at all they became a part of the family. Since then I have been insisting that my publishers should take out naturalization papers for them, and let them settle down at once in everybody else's family.

So here they are.

If you love elephants, you will love Babar and Celeste. If you have never loved elephants you will love them now. If you who are grown-up have never been fascinated by a picture-book before, then this is the one which will fascinate you. If you who are a child do not take these enchanting people to your heart; if you do not spend delightful hours making sure that no detail of their adventures has escaped you; then you deserve to wear gloves and be kept off wet grass for the rest of your life.

I can say no more. I salute
M. de Brunhoff. I am at his feet.
