Child Autonomy and Child Governance in Children's Literature Christopher Kelen, Bjorn Sundmark, 2016-11-18 This book explores representations of child autonomy and self governance in children's literature The idea of child rule and child realms is central to children's literature and childhood is frequently represented as a state of being with children seen as aliens in need of passports to Adultland and vice versa In a sense all children's literature depends on the idea that children are different separate and in command of their own imaginative spaces and places Although the idea of child rule is a persistent theme in discussions of children's literature or about children and childhood the metaphor itself has never been properly unpacked with critical reference to examples from those many texts that are contingent on the authority and or power of children Child governance and autonomy can be seen as natural or perverse it can be displayed as a threat or as a promise Accordingly the child rule motif can be seen in Robinsonades and horror films in philosophical treatises and in series fiction The representations of self ruling children are manifold and ambivalent and range from the idyllic to the nightmarish Contributors to this volume visit a range of texts in which children are in various ways empowered discussing whether childhood itself may be thought of as a nationality and what that may imply This collection shows how representations of child governance have been used for different ideological aesthetic and pedagogical reasons and will appeal to scholars of children's literature childhood studies and cultural studies A Perambulation of the Antient and Royal Forest of Dust jacket Wildlife in North Carolina ,1965 Lost in the Backwoods: A Tale of the Canadian Forest Catharine Parr Strickland Traill,2022-09-16 In Lost in the Backwoods A Tale of the Canadian Forest Catharine Parr Strickland Traill crafts a vivid narrative that captures the profound beauty and harsh realities of life in 19th century Canada. The novel employs rich descriptive language and a blend of adventure and allegory showcasing Traill's keen observations of nature and her deep understanding of settler life. Set against the backdrop of the Canadian wilderness the book grapples with themes of resilience survival and the interplay between humanity and the natural world placing it firmly within the context of early Canadian literature that seeks to bridge the gap between civilization and untamed wilderness. Catharine Parr Strickland Traill an English born writer and naturalist emigrated to Canada in 1832 bringing with her a wealth of experiences that shaped her literary voice. Having lived in the remote woods of Ontario her writings reflect her intimate encounters with flora and fauna as well as the challenges faced by pioneers. Traill's unique perspective as both a settler and a woman in a predominantly male literary space informed her desire to document and celebrate the Canadian landscape notably illustrated in her exploration of its wilderness in this work. Lost in the Backwoods is an essential read for those interested in early Canadian literature environmental writing and women's contributions to the genre. Traill's harmonious blend of realism and romanticism invites readers to immerse themselves in the Canadian wilderness while reflecting on the universal themes of human endurance and the quest for identity.
