becomes even more apparent and problematic when we realize that many of the martyr narratives were largely invented. Franciscan authors were free to choose the antagonist they wanted. Christopher MacEvitt observes and they almost always chose Muslims. However, martyrdom in Franciscan accounts rarely leads to conversion of the infidel nor is it accompanied as is so often the case in earlier hagiographical accounts by any miraculous manifestation. If the importance of preaching to infidels was written into the official Franciscan Rule of Order, the Order did not demonstrate much interest in conversion and the primary efforts of friars in Muslim lands were devoted to preaching not to the native populations but to the Latin Christians, mercenaries, merchants and captives living there. Franciscan attitudes toward conversion and martyrdom changed dramatically in the beginning of the fourteenth century, however, when accounts of the martyrdom of four Franciscans said to have died while preaching in India were written. The speed with which the accounts of their martyrdom spread had less to do with the world beyond Christendom than with ecclesiastical affairs within. MacEvitt contends The Martyrdom of the Franciscans shows how for Franciscans martyrdom accounts could at once offer veiled critique of papal policies toward the Order, a substitute for the rigorous pursuit of poverty and a symbolic way to overcome Islam by denying Muslims the solace of conversion.

The Harvard Classics Anthology Complete 51 Volumes is an unparalleled journey through the rich tapestry of Western literary and philosophical thought. Curated with an eye for the monumental and the profound, this collection spans epic poetry, philosophical treatises, scientific discourse, and pioneering political theory. From the stirring plays of Shakespeare to the foundational dialogues of Plato, each work contributes to the anthology's overarching exploration of human inquiry, creativity, and the quest for knowledge. It is a treasury of diverse styles and genres, featuring standout pieces that provoke reflection and insight without providing definitive answers, but instead fostering a legacy of questions that drive human progress. The assembly of authors in this anthology reads as a who's who of intellectual giants whose works have each shaped the world in indelible ways. Here, Renaissance dramatists mingle with Enlightenment philosophers, and Romantic poets converse with ancient historians. These authors, from Goethe to Montaigne, reflect a broad spectrum of cultural and historical backgrounds, representing movements such as the Enlightenment, the Reformation, and the Scientific Revolution, united in their pursuit to articulate the human experience. Their collective voices enrich this anthology, offering comprehensive viewpoints that underscore the interconnectedness of thought across eras.
