Oil, Wine, and the Cultural Economy of Ancient Greece Catherine E. Pratt, 2021-03-18 In this book Catherine E Pratt explores how oil and wine became increasingly entangled in Greek culture from the Late Bronze Age to the Archaic period Using ceramic architectural and archaeobotanical data she argues that Bronze Age exchange practices initiated a strong network of dependency between oil and wine production and the people who produced exchanged and used them After the palatial collapse these prehistoric connections intensified during the Iron Age and evolved into the large scale industries of the Classical period Pratt argues that oil and wine in pre Classical Greece should be considered cultural commodities products that become indispensable for proper social and economic exchanges well beyond economic advantage Offering a detailed diachronic account of the changing roles of surplus oil and wine in the economies of pre classical Greek societies her book contributes to a broader understanding of the complex interconnections between agriculture commerce and culture in the ancient Mediterranean

Making Senses of the Past Jo Day, 2013-03-19 Since the nineteenth century museums have kept their artifacts in glass cases to better preserve them and drawings and photographs have become standard ways of presenting the past These practices have led to an archaeology dominated by visual description even though human interaction with the surrounding world involves the whole body and all of its senses In the past few years sensory archaeology has become more prominent and Making Senses of the Past is one of the first collected volumes on this subject This book presents cutting edge research on new theoretical issues The essays presented here take readers on a multisensory journey around the world and across time In ancient Peru a site provides sensory surprises as voices resound beneath the ground and hidden carvings slowly reveal their secrets In Canada and New Zealand the flicker of reflected light from a lake dances on the faces of painted rocks and may have influenced when and why the pigment was applied In Mesopotamia vessels for foodstuffs build a picture of a past cuisine that encompasses taste and social activity in the building of communities While perfume and flowers are examined in various cultures in the chamber tombs of ancient Roman Palestine we are reminded that not all smells are pleasant Making Senses of the Past explores alternative ways to perceive past societies and offers a new way of wiring archaeology that incorporates the senses

Representations John Bennet, 2021-08-30 This volume presents a series of reflections on modes of communication in the Bronze Age Aegean drawing on papers presented at two round table workshops of the Sheffield Centre for Aegean Archaeology on Technologies of Representation and Writing and Non Writing in the Bronze Age Aegean Each was designed to capture current developments in these interrelated research areas and also to help elide boundaries between science based and humanities based approaches and between those focused on written communication especially its content and those interested in broader modes of communication Contributions are arranged thematically in three groups the first concerns primarily non written communication the second mainly written communication and the third blurs this somewhat arbitrary distinction

Topics in the first group include use of color in wall paintings at Late Bronze Age Pylos a re interpretation of the Harvester Vase from Ayia Triada re readings of the sequence of grave stelae at Mycenae of Aegean representations of warfare and of how ritual architecture is represented in the Knossos wall paintings and the use of painted media to represent depictions in other lost media such as cloth Topics in the second group range from defining Aegean writing itself through the contexts for literacy and how the Linear B script represented language to a historical exploration of early attempts at deciphering Linear B In the third group Linear B texts and archaeological data are used to explore how people were represented diacritically through taste and smell and how different qualities of time were expressed both textually and materially the roles of images in Aegean scripts complemented by a Peircian analysis of early Cretan writing a consideration of the complementary role of non literate sealing and literate writing practices and concludes with a further exploration of the color palette used at Pylos

Richardson,2017-07-05 Pieter Bruegel the Elder Art Discourse in the Sixteenth Century Netherlands examines the later images by Bruegel in the context of two contemporary discourses art theoretical and convivial The first concerns the purely visual interactions between artists and artistic practices that unfold in pictures which often transgress the categorical boundaries modern scholars place on their work such as sacred and profane antique and modern and Italian and Northern In this context the images themselves those of Bruegel his contemporaries and predecessors make up the primary source material from which the author argues The second deals with the dialogue that occurred between viewers in front of pictures and the way in which pictorial strategies facilitated their visual experience and challenged their analytical capabilities In this regard the author expands his base of primary sources to include convivial texts dialogues and correspondences and texts by rhetoricians and Northern humanists addressing art theoretical issues Challenging the conventional wisdom that the artist eschewed Italianate influences this study demonstrates how Bruegel s later peasant paintings reveal a complicated artistic dialogue in which visual concepts and pictorial motifs from Italian and classical ideas are employed for a subject that was increasingly recognized in the sixteenth century as a specifically Northern phenomenon Similar to the Dutch rhetorician societies and French Pl de poets who cultivated the vernacular language using classical Latin the function of this inter pictorial discourse the author argues was not simply to imitate international trends a common practice during the period but to use it to cultivate his own visual vernacular language Although the focus is primarily on Bruegel s later work the author s conclusions are applied to sketch a broader understanding of both the artist himself and the vibrant artistic dialogue occurring in the Netherl
