Fatal Outcome:

Non-Bayesian Decision Theory Martin Peterson, 2008-06-06 For quite some time philosophers economists and statisticians have endorsed a view on rational choice known as Bayesianism The work on this book has grown out of a feeling that the Bayesian view has come to dominate the academic community to such an extent that a alternative non Bayesian positions are seldom extensively researched Needless to say I think this is a pity Non Bayesian positions deserve to be examined with much greater care and the present work is an attempt to defend what I believe to be a coherent and reasonably detailed non Bayesian account of decision theory The main thesis I defend can be summarised as follows Rational agents minimise subjective expected utility but contrary to what is claimed by Bayesians utility and subjective probability should not be defined in terms of preferences over uncertain prospects On the contrary rational decision makers need only consider preferences over certain outcomes It will be shown that utility and probability functions derived in a non Bayesian manner can be used for generating preferences over uncertain prospects that support the principle of maximising subjective expected utility To some extent this non Bayesian view gives an account of what modern decision theory could have been like had decision theorists not entered the Bayesian path discovered by Ramsey de Finetti Savage and others I will not discuss all previous non Bayesian positions presented in the literature

The Statistical Analysis of Multivariate Failure Time Data
Ross L. Prentice, Shanshan Zhao, 2019-05-14 The Statistical Analysis of Multivariate Failure Time Data A Marginal Modeling Approach provides an innovative look at methods for the analysis of correlated failure times The focus is on the use of marginal single and marginal double failure hazard rate estimators for the extraction of regression information For example in a context of randomized trial or cohort studies the results go beyond that obtained by analyzing each failure time outcome in a univariate fashion The book is addressed to researchers practitioners and graduate students and can be used as a reference or as a graduate course text Much of the literature on the analysis of censored correlated failure time data uses frailty or copula models to allow for residual dependencies among failure times given covariates In contrast this book provides a detailed account of recently developed methods for the simultaneous estimation of marginal single and dual outcome hazard rate regression parameters with emphasis on multiplicative Cox models Illustrations are provided of the utility of these methods using Women's Health Initiative randomized controlled trial data of menopausal hormones and of a low fat dietary pattern intervention As byproducts these methods provide flexible semiparametric estimators of pairwise bivariate survivor functions at specified covariate histories as well as semiparametric estimators of cross ratio and concordance functions given covariates The presentation also describes how these innovative methods may extend to handle issues of dependent censorship missing and mismeasured covariates and joint modeling of failure times and covariates setting the stage for additional theoretical and applied developments This book extends and continues the style of the classic Statistical Analysis of Failure Time Data by Kalbfleisch and Prentice Ross L Prentice is Professor of Biostatistics at the Fred devoted to infectious diseases and internal medicine The numbers of compromised hosts are increasing in the era of modern medicine because of our expanded capabilities to deal with difficult diseases especially neoplasms As a consequence microbiologic complications related to the intensive care administered to these patients are increasing as well Under these circumstances not only does the underlying illness create conditions favorable for the development of unusual infections but often the therapy contributes to the acquisition of potential pathogens that turn into agents responsible for severe and frequently fatal disease Granulocytopenia and immunosuppression have been the two key factors in predisposing patients with cancer and other serious diseases to severe bacterial infections Colonization by hospital acquired pathogens and breaks in the anatomic barriers as a result of disease or medical intervention have contributed to the high incidence of infectious diseases in these patients Although there is some overlap between the types of infection in granulocytopenic and immunosuppressed hosts each of these clinical entities has distinctive features that justify considering them separately reserving the term immunocompromised hosts only when referring to patients who are predisposed to opportunistic infections For about two decades infections in granulocytopenic patients have attracted the attention of clinicians because they represent a model for the study of antimicrobial drugs in hosts deprived of an essential element of defense against bacterial infection that is an adequate number of normally functioning granulocytes
