Declaration of Independence that this name was first and formally proclaimed to the world and to maintain its verity the war of the Revolution was fought Americans like to think that they were then assuming among the Powers of the Earth the equal and independent Station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature s God entitle them and in view of their subsequent marvelous development they are inclined to add that it must have been before an expectant world In these days of prosperity and national greatness it is hard to realize that the achievement of independence did not place the United States on a footing of equality with other countries and that 2 in fact the new state was more or less an unwelcome member of the world family It is nevertheless true that the latest comer into the family of nations did not for a long time command the respect of the world This lack of respect was partly due to the character of the American population Along with the many estimable and excellent people who had come to British North America inspired by the best of motives there had come others who were not regarded favorably by the governing classes of Europe Discontent is frequently a healthful sign and a forerunner of progress but it makes one an uncomfortable neighbor in a satisfied and conservative community and discontent was the underlying factor in the migration from the Old World to the New In any composite immigrant population such as that of the United States there was bound to be a large element of undesirables Among those who came for conscience s sake were the best type of religious protestants but there were also religious cranks from many countries of almost every conceivable sect and of no sect at all Many of the newcomers were poor It was common too to regard colonies as inferior places of residence to which objectionable persons might be encouraged to go and where the average of the 3 population was lowered by the influx of convicts and thousands of slaves
