Fear Of Crime:

Fear of Crime Murray Lee, Stephen Farrall, 2008-07-03 Why is fear of crime so rife in society today The government and media have ploughed money and resources into surveys and initiatives to find out As a concept fear of crime has produced considerable academic debate and this book brings together a collection of new and cutting edge articles from key scholars in criminology which question the orthodoxy of fear of crime models Fear of Crime Kenneth F. Ferraro, 1995-01-01 This is an examination of the factors that contribute to the risk of being victimized such as crime rates and environmental and personal variables Fear of Crime Greta W. Salem, Dan A. Lewis, 2016-04-30 Mass incarceration and lower crime rates have not made city dwellers feel safe Programs designed to deal with this problem focus on increased police protection In this study Lewis and Salem question the validity of these assumptions and the effectiveness of this approach Their five year investigation challenged theories that focused only on the psychological responses to victimization and failed to take into account the social and political environments within which such fears are created From a social control perspective which informs their research and analysis the authors examined the fear of crime in ten neighborhoods in Chicago San Francisco and Philadelphia which represent the range of communities typically found in urban areas The authors contend that fear of crime is not related to exposure or knowledge about criminal events alone but also stems from residents concerns about changes in their neighborhoods Many people they argue are afraid of crime because they believe that they have lost control over their local communities Their conclusions remain as valid as when this book was first published in 1986 Lewis and Salem consider ways to restore the control that community residents feel they have lost and consider the possibilities for a more equitable distribution of security in urban areas The Routledge International Handbook on Fear of Crime Murray

Lee, Gabe Mythen, 2017-12-01 The Routledge International Handbook on Fear of Crime brings together original and international state of the art contributions of theoretical empirical policy related scholarship on the intersection of perceptions of crime victimisation vulnerability and risk This is timely as fear of crime has now been a focus of scholarly and policy interest for some fifty years and shows little sign of abating Research on fear of crime is demonstrative of the inter disciplinary nature of criminology drawing in the disciplines of sociology psychology political science history cultural studies gender studies planning and architecture philosophy and human geography This collection draws in many of these interdisciplinary themes This collection also extends the boundaries of fear of crime research It does this both methodologically and conceptually but perhaps more importantly it moves us beyond some of the often repeated debates in this field to focus on novel topics from unique perspectives The book begins by plotting the history of fear of crime development then moves on to investigate the methodological and theoretical debates that have ensued and the policy transfer that occurred across jurisdictions Key elements in debates and research on fear of crime concerning gender race and ethnicity are covered as are contemporary themes in fear of crime research such as regulation security risk and the fear of terrorism the mapping of fear of crime and fear of crime beyond urban landscapes The final sections of the book explore geographies of fear and future and unique directions for this research     Fear of Crime Kenneth F. Ferraro,1995-03-09 Ferraro examines how people interpret their risk of criminal victimization and identifies who is most likely to be afraid of crime Although many previous studies of fear of crime do not explicitly consider the concept of risk or perceived risk in estimating the prevalence of fear the approach taken here considers perceived risk as central to the entire interpretive process It links national survey data on how people think about crime to official crime rates in America and uses the comprehensive set of environmental and personal variables on a nationally representative sample to examine how fear develops for ten different types of crime     Fear of Crime Helmut Kury,2008     The Fear of Crime Jason Ditton,Stephen Farrall,2017-07-05 Studies of the fear of crime have constituted what is undeniably the fastest growing research area within criminology in the last decade and this shows no sign of diminishing The editors have a distinguished record of innovative research in the field being responsible for a number of seminal empirical and theoretical articles In this volume they have collected together and for the first time all the most significant contributions to the field The collection includes an introductory essay by the editors and articles reflecting an overview of the field the causes of vulnerability the sources of information on victimisation the methods used to survey fear the theoretical models employed to explain it and the nature of policies designed to reduce fear     Inventing Fear of Crime Murray Lee,2013-06-17 Over the past four decades the fear of crime has become an increasingly significant concern for criminologists victimologists policy makers politicians police the media and the general public For many practitioners reducing fear of crime has become almost as important an issue as reducing crime itself The identification of fear of crime as a serious policy problem has given rise to a massive amount of research activity political discussion and intellectual debate Despite this activity actually reducing levels of fear of crime has proved difficult Even in recent years when many western nations have experienced reductions in the levels of reported crime fear of crime has often proven intractable The result has been the development of what amounts to a fear of crime industry Previous studies have identified conceptual challenges theoretical cul de sacs and methodological problems with the use of the concept fear of crime Yet it has endured as both an organizing principal for a body of research and a term to describe a social malady This provocative wide ranging book asks how and why fear of crime retains this cultural political and social scientific currency despite concerted criticism of its utility It subjects the concept to rigorous critical scrutiny taking examples from the UK North America and Australia Part One of Inventing Fear of Crime traces the historical emergence of the fear of crime concept while Part Two addresses the issue of fear of crime and political rationality and analyses fear of crime as a tactic or technique of government This book will be essential reading on one of the key issues in government and politics in contemporary society     Fear of Crime and Punitiveness Helmut Kury,2013 As a subject area of inquiry and research fear of crime and punitiveness have played an increasingly important role in criminology Since the early 1990s and emanating largely from within the United States there has been a growing body of research as well as increased attention given to the subject by the media and policy makers In part triggered by the fact that the United States has the highest imprisonment rate approx 780 100 000 in 2012 in the Western world and still has the death penalty in most states increasing attention has been paid to the impact of peoples perceptions of crime their fear of possible victimization and their sense of punitivity to wards offenders And although the body of literature on fear of crime and punitivity has been growing there still remain many regions and countries of the world where there is a dearth of such research This collection includes several of the countries where such research represents the first of its kind The reader will be provided a broad overview of the subject and presented with varied observations about fear of crime and punitivity from different parts of the world As the project represents a novel and exploratory venture into the subject area the collective content provided in this collection will hopefully also serve to advance future research and inform sentencing policy and initiatives to address fear of crime This volume includes seven comparable reports in which the contributors used a common standardized survey to collect data on fear of crime and punitivity among post secondary students The countries represent a cross section of different legal political and cultural systems The countries also vary in their degree of criminal justice development and in terms of the rights of victims In each of the contributions the author s provide an overview of their country before discussing the results of the survey they administered The articles are prepared in a manner that allow varying degrees of comparison as well as recommendations for the future direction of this relatively new area of international inquiry

Fear of Crime Among the Elderly Mary Dale Craig,2018-10-24 This multimethod study of crime and the elderly in a small town setting approaches the related issues from varied perspectives and ultimately presents a different picture of fear of crime among the elderly than that which dominates the current literature Three features contribute to this book s uniqueness The first is a departure from the urban view the second is an emphasis on phenomenology and the third is multimethodology With an emphasis on qualitative research this study allows the elderly and other key informants to present their own portrait relative to crime a portrait that is far more contextually varied and far less dominated by fear and vulnerability than is commonly assumed

Safety, Societal Problems and Citizens' Perceptions Marc Cools,Brice De Ruyver,Marleen Easton,2010 In nowadays globalised society an international exchange of ideas and views is indispensable within the field of social sciences including criminology and criminal justice studies

The Urban Fabric of Crime and Fear Vania Ceccato,2012-06-21 How does the city s urban fabric relate to crime and fear and how is that fabric affected by crime and fear Does the urban environment affect one s decision to commit an offence Is there a victimisation related inequality within cities How do crime and fear interrelate to inequality and segregation in cities of developing countries What are the challenges to planning cities which are both safe and sustainable This book searches for answers to these questions in the nature of the city particularly in the social interactions that take place in urban space distinctively guided by different land uses and people's activities. In other words, the book deals with the urban fabric of crime and fear. The novelty of the book is to place safety and security issues on the urban scale by 1 showing links between urban structure and crime and fear 2 illustrating how different disciplines deal with urban vulnerability to and fear of crime 3 including concrete examples of issues and challenges found in European and North American cities and without being too extensive also in cities of the Global South.

Women in Contemporary Britain Jane Pilcher, 1999 This core module in sociology and women's studies provides an introduction to the subject of women, their influence and role in modern British society as well as considerations that have been the focus of feminist study over a number of years.

Encyclopedia of Victimology and Crime Prevention Bonnie S. Fisher, Steven P. Lab, 2010-02-02 Victimology and crime prevention are growing interrelated areas cutting across several disciplines. Victimology examines victims of all sorts of criminal activity from domestic abuse to street violence to victims in the workplace who lose jobs and pensions due to malfeasance by corporate executives. Crime prevention is an important companion to victimology because it offers insight and techniques to prevent situations that lead to crime and attempts to offer ideas and means for mitigating or minimizing the potential for victimization. In many ways the two fields have developed along parallel yet separate paths and the literature on both has been scattered across disciplines as varied as sociology, law and criminology, public health and medicine, political science and public policy, economics, psychology and human services and more. The Encyclopedia of Victimology and Crime Prevention provides a comprehensive reference work bringing together such dispersed knowledge as it outlines and discusses the status of victims within the criminal justice system and topics of deterring and preventing victimization in the first place and responding to victims' needs. Two volumes containing approximately 375 signed entries provide users with the most authoritative and comprehensive reference resource available on victimology and crime prevention both in terms of breadth and depth of coverage. In addition to standard entries, leading scholars in the field have contributed Anchor Essays that in broad strokes provide starting points for investigating the more salient victimology and crime prevention topics. A representative sampling of general topic areas covered includes interpersonal and domestic violence, child maltreatment and elder abuse, street violence, hate crimes and terrorism, treatment of victims by the media, courts, police and politicians, community response to crime victims, physical design for crime prevention, victims of nonviolent crimes, deterrence and prevention, helping and counseling crime victims, international and comparative perspectives and more.
