Taste for Civilization Janet A. Flammang, 2009-10-06 This book explores the idea that table activities the mealtime rituals of food preparation serving and dining lay the foundation for a proper education on the value of civility the importance of the common good and what it means to be a good citizen The arts of conversation and diplomatic speech are learned and practiced at tables and a political history of food practices recasts thoughtfulness and generosity as virtues that enhance civil society and democracy In our industrialized and profit centered culture however foodwork is devalued and civility is eroding Looking at the field of American civility Janet A. Flammang addresses the gendered responsibilities for foodwork's civilizing functions and argues that any formulation of civil society must consider food practices and the household To allow space for practicing civility generosity and thoughtfulness through everyday foodwork Americans must challenge the norms of unbridled consumerism work life balance and domesticity and caregiving Connecting political theory with the quotidian activities of the dinner table Flammang discusses practical ideas from the delicious revolution and Slow Food movement to illustrate how civic activities are linked to foodwork and she points to farmers markets and gardens in communities schools and jails as sites for strengthening civil society and degendering foodwork American Writers in Europe F.

Asya, 2013-10-03 These essays explore the impartial critical outlook American writers acquired through their experiences in Europe since 1850 Collectively contributors reveal how the American writer's intuitive sense of freedom coupled with their feeling of liberation from European influences led to intellectual independence in the literary works they produced

Transformations of Trauma in Women's Writing Laura Alexander, 2023-01-10 This volume examines the ways in which trauma alters women's identities. While some of the chapters look deeply at individual experiences, many of the contributions look to national traumas and the consequences of political abuses including colonial subjugation and genocide for women. The book shows that language has a transformative power to change us to give us a great capacity for inner and outer dialogues and for healing and self-love. As shown here, women have historically employed autobiography and memoir to free themselves and others rather than seeing the limit of form; they reinvent the parameters to offer a new relationship with language.

Dinner Roles Sherrie A. Inness, 2001-04 Who cooks dinner in American homes? It's no surprise that Mom remains the overwhelming answer. Cooking and all it entails from grocery shopping to chopping vegetables to clearing the table is to this day primarily a woman's responsibility. How this relationship between women and food developed through the twentieth century and why it has endured are the questions Sherrie Inness seeks to answer in Dinner Roles: American Women and Culinary Culture. By exploring a wide range of popular media from the first half of the twentieth century including cookbooks, women's magazines, and advertisements, Dinner Roles sheds light on the network of sources that helped perpetuate the notion that cooking is women's work. Cookbooks and advertisements provided valuable information about the ideals that American society upheld. A woman who could prepare the perfect Jell-O mold whip up a cake with her new electric mixer and still maintain a spotless kitchen and a sunny disposition was the envy of other housewives across the nation. Inness begins her exploration not with women but with men, those individuals often missing from the kitchen who were taught their own set of culinary values. She continues with the study of juvenile cookbooks which provided children with their first cooking lessons. Chapters on the rise of electronic appliances, ethnic foods, and the 1950s housewife all add to our greater understanding of women's evolving roles in American culinary culture.

Fearing the Black Body Sabrina Strings, 2019-05-07 Winner 2020 Body and Embodiment Best Publication Award given by the American Sociological Association; Honorable Mention 2020 Sociology of Sex and Gender Distinguished Book Award given by the American Sociological Association. How the female body has been racialized for over two hundred years. There is an obesity epidemic in this country, and poor Black women are particularly stigmatized as diseased and a burden on the public health care system. This is only the most recent incarnation of the fear of fat Black women, which Sabrina Strings shows took root more than two hundred years ago. Strings weaves together an eye-opening historical narrative ranging from the Renaissance to the current moment, analyzing important works of art, newspaper and magazine articles, and scientific literature and medical journals where fat bodies were once praised, showing that fat phobia as it relates to Black women did not originate with medical findings but with the Enlightenment-era belief that fatness was evidence of savagery and racial inferiority. The author argues that the contemporary ideal of slenderness is at its very core racialized and racist. Indeed, it was not until the early twentieth century when racialized attitudes against fatness were already entrenched in the culture that the medical establishment began its crusade against obesity An important and original work Fearing the Black Body argues convincingly that fat phobia isn't about health at all but rather a means of using the body to validate race class and gender prejudice Ethical Issues: Perspectives for Canadians - Fourth Edition Eldon Soifer, Doug Al-Maini, Ann Levey, Angus Taylor, 2020-05-05 Ethical Issues: Perspectives for Canadians is a collection of readings designed to introduce students to a number of important topics including our obligations toward the environment the treatment of non human animals abortion assisted reproduction end of life decision making freedom of expression war multiculturalism and more Readings have been carefully selected to represent a broad array of perspectives and arguments Relevant legislation court cases and other non philosophical works complement the writings of professional philosophers to provide students with multiple approaches to the issues Brief introductions and discussion questions are provided for each reading and a general introduction to the basic ethical theories is included We Are What We Sell Danielle Sarver Coombs, Bob Batchelor, 2014-01-15 For the last 150 years advertising has created a consumer culture in the United States shaping every facet of American life from what we eat and drink to the clothes we wear and the cars we drive In the United States advertising has carved out an essential place in American culture and advertising messages undoubtedly play a significant role in determining how people interpret the world around them This three volume set examines the myriad ways that advertising has influenced many aspects of 20th century American society such as popular culture politics and the economy Advertising not only played a critical role in selling goods to an eager public but it also served to establish the now world renowned consumer culture of our country and fuel the notion of the American dream The collection spotlights the most important advertising campaigns brands and companies in American history from the late 1800s to modern day Each fact driven essay provides insight and in depth analysis that general readers will find fascinating as well as historical details and contextual nuance students and researchers will greatly appreciate These volumes demonstrate why advertising is absolutely necessary not only for companies behind the messaging but also in defining what it means to be an American Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking Jessamyn Neuhaus, 2012-03-15 A study of what American cookbooks from the 1790s to the 1960s can show us about gender roles food and culture of their time From the first edition of The Fannie Farmer Cookbook to the latest works by today's celebrity chefs cookbooks reflect more than just passing culinary fads As historical artifacts they offer a unique perspective on the cultures that produced them In Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking Jessamyn Neuhaus offers a perceptive and piquant analysis of the tone and content of American cookbooks published between the 1790s and the 1960s adroitly uncovering the cultural assumptions and anxieties particularly about women and domesticity they contain Neuhaus's in depth survey of these cookbooks questions the supposedly straightforward lessons about food preparation they imparted While she finds that cookbooks aimed to make readers mainly white middle class women into effective modern age homemakers who saw joy not drudgery in their domestic tasks she notes that the phenomenal popularity of Peg Bracken's 1960 cookbook The I Hate to Cook Book attests to the limitations of this kind of indoctrination. At the same time she explores the proliferation of bachelor cookbooks aimed at the man in the kitchen and the biases they display about male and female abilities, tastes and responsibilities. Neuhaus also addresses the impact of World War II rationing on homefront cuisine, the introduction of new culinary technologies, gourmet sensibilities and ethnic foods into American kitchens and developments in the cookbook industry since the 1960s. More than a history of the cookbook, Manly Meals and Mom's Home Cooking provides an absorbing and enlightening account of gender and food in modern America. An engaging analysis, Neuhaus provides a rich and well researched cultural history of American gender roles through her clever use of cookbooks. Sarah Eppler Janda, History Reviews of New Books. With sound scholarship and a focus on prescriptive food literature, Manly Meals makes an original and useful contribution to our understanding of how gender roles are institutionalized and perpetuated. Warren Belasco, senior editor of The Oxford Encyclopedia of American Food and Drink. An excellent addition to the history of women's roles in America as well as to the history of cookbooks. Choice

Look Who's Cooking Jennifer Rachel Dutch, 2018-08-03 Home cooking is a multibillion dollar industry that includes cookbooks, kitchen gadgets, high end appliances, specialty ingredients and more. Cooking-themed programming flourishes on television, inspiring a wide array of celebrity chef-branded goods, even as self-described foodies seek authenticity by pickling, preserving and canning foods in their own home kitchens. Despite this, claims that no one has time to cook anymore are common, lamenting the slow extinction of traditional American home cooking in the twenty-first century. In Look Who's Cooking: The Rhetoric of American Home Cooking Traditions in the Twenty-First Century, author Jennifer Rachel Dutch explores the death of home cooking narrative, revealing how modern changes transformed cooking at home from an odious chore into a concept imbued with deep meanings associated with home, family and community. Drawing on a wide array of texts, cookbooks, advertising, YouTube videos and more, Dutch analyzes the many manifestations of traditional cooking in America today. She argues that what is missing from the discourse around home cooking is an understanding of skills and recipes as a form of folklore. Dutch's research reveals that home cooking is a powerful vessel that Americans fill with meaning because it represents both the continuity of the past and adaptability to the present. Home cooking is about much more than what is for dinner; it's about forging a connection to the past, displaying the self in the present and leaving a lasting legacy for the future.

Touching on themes such as madness and discourse, power and biopolitics, government and ethics, and sexuality and friendship, the volume takes the fields of Foucault studies and human animal studies into promising new directions Fat Sander L.
