Images are interrogated as part of regimes of the visible of a history of visual technologies and visual practices. Considering the socio-material quality of the image, the analysis moves away from the use of images as mere illustrations of written arguments and takes seriously the question of the life and death of artifacts, that is their particular historicity. Questioning the visual and material evidence in this way means considering how, when, and in which regime of the visible it has come to be considered as a source and what this means for the questions contemporary researchers might ask.
