Transforming Public Space through Play Gregor H. Mews, 2022-04-21 This book provides an empirical analysis of the concept of play as a form of spatial practice in urban public spaces The introduced City Play Framework CPF is a practical urban analysis tool that allows urban designers landscape architects and researchers to develop a shared awareness when opening up this window of possibility for adventure Two case studies substantiate and illustrate the development process and testing of the framework in Canberra Australia and Potsdam Germany The appropriation of public spaces that transcend boundaries can facilitate an intrinsic connection between people and their immediate environment towards a more joyful ontological state of human existence in which imagination co-creation and a sense of agency are key elements of the design approach The framework presents an alternative understanding of public spaces and public life reflecting on theory and its implications for practice in a post pandemic world in dense urban centres A bridge between theory and practice this book explores possibilities on what future design ought to be when openness and ambiguity are consciously integrated parts of practice and process The book presents a valuable discussion on public space and play for academic audiences across a wide range of disciplines such as landscape architecture urban design planning architecture and urban sociology which is informative for future practice

The Eclectic Library Catalog, 1911 Christian and Lyric Tradition in Victorian Women's Poetry F. Elizabeth Gray, 2009-09-10 Women in the Victorian period were acknowledged to be the religious sex but their relationship to the doctrines practices and hierarchies of Christianity was both highly circumscribed which has been well documented and complexly creative which has not Gray visits the importance of the literature of Christian devotion to women's creative lives through an examination of the varied ways in which Victorian women reproduced and recreated traditional Christian texts in their own poetic texts Investigating how women poets redeployed the discourse of Christianity to uncover the multiple voices of the scriptures to expand identity and gender constructions and to question traditional narratives and processes of authorization Gray contends that women found in religious poetry unexpected liberating possibilities Taking into account multiple voices from the best known female poets of the day to some of the most obscure this study provides a comprehensive account of Victorian women's religious poetic creativity and argues that this body of work helped shape the development of the lyric in the Victorian period

Romanticism and Women Poets Harriet Kramer Linkin, Stephen C. Behrendt, 2021-10-21 One of the most exciting developments in Romantic studies in the past decade has been the rediscovery and repositioning of women poets as vital and influential members of the Romantic literary community This is the first volume to focus on women poets of this era and to consider how their historical reception challenges current conceptions of Romanticism With a broad revisionist view the essays examine the poetry these women produced what the poets thought about themselves and their place in the contemporary literary scene and what the recovery of their works says about current and past theoretical frameworks The contributors focus their attention on such poets as Felicia Hemans Letitia Elizabeth Landon Charlotte Smith Anna Barbauld Mary Lamb and Fanny Kemble and argue for a significant rethinking of Romanticism as an intellectual and cultural phenomenon Grounding their consideration of the poets in cultural social intellectual and aesthetic concerns the authors contest the received wisdom about Romantic poetry its authors its themes and its audiences Some of the essays examine the ways in which many of the poets sought to establish stable positions and identities for themselves while others address the changing nature over time of the reputations of these women poets
