Pioneering educator Elizabeth Evelyn Wright was born in Talbotton, Georgia, and attended school here at St. Phillips African Methodist Episcopal Church, where many local African-American children received their education. Under the tutelage of President Booker T. Washington and his wife, Olivia, Wright graduated from Alabama's Tuskegee Institute in 1894 and moved to South Carolina to start a school inspired by Washington's model of industrial education for African Americans. Despite the support of wealthy and influential people from across the country, Wright faced suspicion, racial attacks in her efforts to found the school. In 1897 she founded the Denmark Industrial School, later named Voorhees College in South Carolina. Wright died in 1906 and is buried on the campus of Voorhees College in 1962 when the school received its current name.

South Carolina Women Marjorie Julian Spruill, 2010-01-25 The biographical essays in this volume provide new insights into the various ways that South Carolina women asserted themselves in their state and illuminate the tension between tradition and change that defined the South from the Civil War through the Progressive Era As old rules including gender conventions that severely constrained southern women were dramatically bent if not broken these women carved out new roles for themselves and others The volume begins with a profile of Laura Towne and Ellen Murray who founded the Penn School on St Helena Island for former slaves Subsequent essays look at such women as the five Rollin sisters members of a prominent black family who became passionate advocates for women s rights during Reconstruction writer Josephine Pinckney who helped preserve African American spirituals and explored conflicts between the New and Old South in her essays and novels and Dr Matilda Evans the first African American woman licensed to practice medicine in the state Intractable racial attitudes often caused women to follow separate but parallel paths as with Louisa B Poppenheim and Marion B Wilkinson Poppenheim who was white and Wilkinson who was black were both driving forces in the women s club movement Both saw clubs as a way not only to help women and children but also to showcase these positive changes to the wider nation Yet the two women worked separately as did the white and black state federations of women s clubs Often mixing deference with daring these women helped shape their society through such avenues as education religion politics community organizing history the arts science and medicine Women in the mid and late twentieth century would build on their accomplishments
