Re-aligning Actors in an Urbanized World I. Baud, J. Post, 2018-02-06 This title was first published in 2003 In the 1980s discussions on urban regional and international development were dominated by those advocating liberalism and free markets In the 1990s the experiences of many countries from the previous Soviet Union and those following socialist development models in the South have led to a renewed interest in the democratic institutions that underpin economic development processes Thus the state has come back into focus as an enabler a co ordinating agency working with a variety of other organizations in different forms of partnership aimed at urban and regional development At the same time increasing disparities between rich and poor have led poor urban households to organize collectively against poverty and to promote community and neighbourhood development This title examines how both these processes take place looking at patterns of fundamental re aligning between state civil society and the market in an integrated manner It focuses on urban and regional development because at the local and regional levels the direct interface between local government the local and global market and civil society organizations occurs The question of re alignment is considered from three main perspectives governance and community organization issues at local level urban areas as motors of economic development and their interface with globalization processes and urban areas as the nodes of regional development In each part of the book one of these perspectives is taken The contributions of the different authors are grouped around these complementary perspectives Changing alignment patterns also have far reaching implications In the last section the relation between research and policy around these issues is considered based on reflections by policy makers and academics who have been influential both nationally and internationally

What Makes Clusters Competitive? Anil Hira, 2013-11-01 While global competitiveness is increasingly invoked as necessary for economic success stories there are few answers available about how it can be achieved or maintained The idea of stimulating industries to spur on economies is often proposed but industrial policy can be seen as a boondoggle of government spending and theorists of globalization are doubtful that such efforts can succeed in a world of fragmented supply chains What Makes Clusters Competitive tests fundamental theoretical hypotheses about what makes industries competitive in a globalized world by using the wine industries of several countries as case studies Extremadura Spain Tuscany Italy South Australia Chile and British Columbia Canada Taking into account historical and location specific characteristics and drawing out policy lessons for other regions that would like to promote their industries this volume demonstrates the value of applying cluster theory to understand market forces while also describing the forces underlying the development of the wine industry in a range of different settings An excellent resource for those interested in what makes industries succeed or struggle What Makes Clusters Competitive offers guidance for policymakers and the private sector on how to promote local industries Contributors include David Aylward Alexis Bwenge Sara Daniele F J Mes as D az Christian Felzenstein Husam Gabreldar F Pulido Garc a Sarah Giest Elisa Giuliani Andy Hira Mike Howlett A F Pulido Moreno and Oriana Perrone

Understanding the Firm Michael Taylor, Päivi Oinas, 2006-12-21 Firms are at the very heart of modern day life They come in a seemingly infinite variety from transnationals to small firm from corporations to branch plants to subsidiaries and joint ventures from subcontractors to franchisees from sole proprietorships to partnerships from manufacturers to service providers and retailers For the most part we view them as the creators destroyers and repositories of jobs the creators and destroyers of people s livelihoods lives and dreams But deciding just what a firm is is neither a simple nor a straightforward task Against a background of the dynamic complexity and plurality that business forms and firms can assume there is a constant search within academic research for the processes that create and maintain both enterprise and enterprises in capitalist societies a search for a theory of the firm This book addresses some of the gaps in the current state of the theory of the firm from an economic geography perspective issues around the boundaries of the firm the collective agency of the firm the political firm financial markets and the state and the firm in place

Revolutions from Grub Street Howard Cox, Simon Mowatt, 2014-03-07 Revolutions from Grub Street charts the evolution of Britain s popular magazine industry from its seventeenth century origins through to the modern digital age Following the reforms engendered by the Glorious Revolution of 1688 the Grub Street area of London which later transmuted into the cluster of venerable publishing houses centred on Fleet Street spawned a vibrant culture of commercial writers and small scale printing houses Exploiting the commercial potential offered by improvements to the system of letterpress printing and allied to a growing demand for popular forms of reading matter during the course of the eighteenth century one of Britain s pioneering cultural industries began to take meaningful shape Publishers of penny weeklies and sixpenny monthlies sought to capitalise on the opportunities that magazines combining lively text with appealing illustrations offered for the turning of a profit The technological revolutions of the nineteenth century facilitated the emergence of a host of small and medium sized printer publishers whose magazine titles found a willing and growing audience ranging from Britain's semi literate working classes through to its fashion conscious ladies In 1881 the launch of George Newnes highly innovative Tit Bits magazine created a publishing sensation ushering in the era of the modern million selling popular weekly Newnes and his early collaborators Arthur Pearson and Alfred Harmsworth went on to create a group of competing business enterprises that during the twentieth century emerged as colossal publishing houses employing thousands of mainly trade union regulated workers In the early 1960s these firms together with Odhams Press merged to create the basis of the modern magazine giant IPC Practically a monopoly producer until the 1980s IPC was convulsed thereafter by the dual revolutions of globalization and digitization finding its magazines under commercial attack from all directions Challenged first by EMAP Natmags and Cond Nast by the 1990s IPC faced competition both from expanding European rivals such as H Bauer and a variety of newly formed agile domestic competitors who were able to successfully exploit the opportunities presented by desktop publishing and the world wide web In a narrative spanning over 300 years Revolutions from Grub Street draws together a wide range of new and existing sources to provide the first comprehensive business history of magazine making in Britain

Scott, 2004-08-05 Since the Second World War there has been considerable growth in the importance of non manufacturing based forms of production to the performance of many Western economies Many countries have seen increased contributions being made by industries such as the media entertainment and artistic sectors Gathering together a leading international multi disciplinary team of researchers this informative book presents cutting edge perspectives on how these industries function their place in the new economy and how they can be harnessed for urban and regional economic and social development Coping with Distances Jørgen Ole Bærenholdt, 2011-03 The Nordic Atlantic area has seen remarkable examples of social formations in areas that many would perceive as too remote to allow the construction of functioning communities But through innovations networking and the formation of identities people have coped with distances thus continuously rebuilding societies in Northern Norway Iceland the Faroes and Greenland Living conditions in the Nordic Atlantic are so extreme that one might ask whether the notion of society is applicable under these circumstances The author argues that yes there is a meaningful way of comprehending these social formations which is through the spatial and temporal practices that produce reproduce stabilize destabilize and change them He introduces the concept of coping which means neither mastering nor adapting but relates to in between strategies and tactics reflected in practices of securing people's way of life under conditions that are never totally Schamp,2019-06-04 Originally published in 2005 This book examines how regional industries use different networks on various geographical scales in order to withstand increasing competition in a globalising world It argues that new forms of global governance of networked industries are emerging in particular in those areas that have only recently been incorporated into the global economy such as Eastern Europe Asia and Southern Africa The book addresses a number of issues including the different forms of institutional arrangements that contribute to the formation of heterogeneous global industrial networks It also raises the issue of national institutions that still matter in network formation The focus of the book is on how to improve regional and sectoral competitiveness in a global context and it suggests this is best achieved by a close analysis of global linkages an evolutionary perspective on processes taking place and a more differentiated view on globalisation Clusters and Competitive Advantage Ö. Öz,2004-09-21 This book aims to clarify the link between geographic clustering and international competitiveness in light of the Turkish experience a subject that is high on the agendas of researchers as well as policy makers and strategic planners The key findings of the study are discussed with respect to the recent debates on clusters to provide a full account of what the Turkish experience when looked from the viewpoint of the strategic management discipline offers to further intellectual thinking on clusters Learning from Clusters Ron A. Boschma,Robert C. Kloosterman,2006-03-30 Jan Lambooy retired in October 2002 When Jan was asked how he wanted to celebrate this occasion he was adamant that no great festivities should take place Characteristically Jan wanted just a scientific conference so he could learn something from it and as he insisted no great festivities So that is what we did and a conference was organised in Amsterdam on 25 October 2002 hosted by the Faculty of Economics and Econometrics of the University of Amsterdam Friends of Jan s from academia in the Netherlands and abroad participated and thus paid homage to Jan both as a scientist and as a person We are now very proud to present this festschrift firstly as the palpable result of this conference and secondly as a token of sincere respect and great affection for Jan Edited volumes run the danger of being a hotchpotch of contributions on a wide variety of topics Here we have explicitly focused on a central theme in contemporary economic geography and regional science namely the relationship between learning innovation and clustering Internationally renowned scientists made both theoretical and empirical contributions to this volume We think this book constitutes a broad palette of contemporary thinking and research on the relationship between spatial concentration and innovation and hope it will play a significant role in future debates on this issue Bleeding-Edge Entrepreneurship João J.
