Entrepreneurship, Geography, and American Economic Growth Zoltan J. Acs, Catherine Armington, 2006-06-19 The spillovers in knowledge among largely college educated workers were among the key reasons for the impressive degree of economic growth and spread of entrepreneurship in the United States during the 1990s Prior industrial policies in the 1970s and 1980s did not advance growth because these were based on outmoded large manufacturing models Zoltan Acs and Catherine Armington use a knowledge spillover theory of entrepreneurship to explain new firm formation rates in regional economies during the 1990s period and beyond The fastest growing regions are those that have the highest rates of new firm formation and which are not dominated by large businesses The authors of this text also find support for the thesis that knowledge spillovers move across industries and are not confined within a single industry As a result they suggest regional policies to encourage and sustain growth should focus on entrepreneurship among other factors Proceedings of the

The Small Business Advocate, 1996-05

Hybrid Entrepreneurship Matthias Schulz, 2018-01-26 The preponderance of research regards entrepreneurial entry as a dichotomous choice between paid employment and entrepreneurship Most classic models on the emergence of entrepreneurship either neglect or exclude the opportunity of engaging in both occupations at the same time This view stands in contrast to increasing evidence that the majority of firm entry around the world occurs by individuals who simultaneously engage in paid employment and self employment an entry mode which has been termed hybrid entrepreneurship 58% of all start ups in Sweden have been found to be started in hybrid entrepreneurship and even in R D pursuing start ups in Germany this type of business entry represents 27% of all entrants Next to this high prevalence of hybrid entrepreneurs among entrepreneurs there are at least three reasons why these hybrid entrepreneurs should receive more attention First as hybrid entrepreneurs are often better educated than pure entrepreneurs their business ideas might be expected to result in more high growth ventures Second businesses run in pure entrepreneurship survive longer on average if they have been founded in hybrid entrepreneurship Third regardless of whether or not hybrid entrepreneurs generate greater economic impact than pure entrepreneurs their relevance also emerges from their potential to evolve into valuable full time businesses that otherwise would not have existed This thesis therefore aims to advance research on hybrid entrepreneurship by revealing its importance for policymaking and entrepreneurship research the various areas of research touched by it and its role in entrepreneurial exit processes
