International Perspectives on Child and Adolescent Mental Health N. Singh,Dee Pang,A. Singh,2000-06-01 There has been a major shift in the way we conceptualize and provide services to children and adolescents with mental health needs We are moving away from the traditional disorder oriented model of treatment to a child centered family focused service delivery system that mandates mental health services in the context of the child s family and social ecology This new system of care has spawned many variations of the model including wraparound services multisystemic treatment MST futures planning and person centred planning As systems of care are different across countries and cultures it is imperative that we share our knowledge and make explicit the lessons we have learned in our attempts to provide services to children and adolescents which focus on improving their quality of life rather than merely treating their psychiatric disorders and psychological problems There is an urgent need to evaluate the various treatments being offered to children and adolescents with mental health needs Empirical data on outcomes will determine the funding and delivery of services As such the latest research on treatment outcomes needs to be disseminated so that new and validated treatment methods can be implemented rapidly

Martin,2024-10-24 We have many histories of social theory what different authors attempted to do as they responded to previous theories But we know precious little about how they did this in structural terms what scaffolding they adopted and adapted to make their claims Yet today s social thoughts largely employ structures passed down from previous generations structures that were developed to solve problems that are no longer ours In The True the Good and the Beautiful John Levi Martin explores these structures the resulting tensions and their broader significance for sociological thought By examining how thinkers mapped interpersonal to intrapersonal structures he traces the development of the underlying architectonics of theory focusing on one that was inherited from eighteenth century philosophy and brought into social science in the nineteenth century He shows that the structural tensions inherent in these theories paralleled those being worked out in practical terms by constitutional theorists as thinkers attempted to return to their most fundamental understandings of the nature of the human the social and the political to recraft their societies A magisterial new interpretation of the foundations of sociological thought The True the Good and the Beautiful is as ambitious a work of social theory as we have seen in generations      Vulnerability and Resilience in English Literature of the Long 19th Century Raffaella

Antinucci,Adrian Grafe,2024-11-29 The nineteenth century was a time of accelerated change and stark contradictions It was marked by stability advancement and reform but also by widening inequalities spiritual crisis and social unrest Identity and gender came under pressure religious belief was called into question and the condition of women and children seemed to belie the much vaunted idea of progress Essays in this book explore how these contradictions and concerns are reflected in nineteenth century literature In discussing historical figures characters and plots that are variously vulnerable and or resilient the essays reflect the breadth of nineteenth century literature from realist and sensational fiction to autobiography and poetry Besides providing insights into the transfigurative role writing played both as a means to express vulnerability and as a resilience process the essays also foster further reflection on two timeless dimensions of the human condition

The Dictionary of Education and Instruction: a Reference Book and Manual on the Theory and Practice of Teaching Henry Kiddle,Alexander Jacob Schem,1882      Common School Assistant ,1836      The Victorian Reinvention of Race Edward

Beasley, 2010-07-02 In mid Victorian England there were new racial categories based upon skin colour. The races familiar to those in the modern west were invented and elaborated after the decline of faith in Biblical monogenesis in the early nineteenth century and before the maturity of modern genetics in the middle of the twentieth. Not until the early nineteenth century would polygenetic and racist theories win many adherents. But by the middle of the nineteenth century in England racial categories were imposed upon humanity. How the idea of race gained popularity in England at that time is the central focus of The Victorian Reinvention of Race: New Racisms and the Problem of Grouping in the Human Sciences. Scholars have linked this new racism to some very dodgy thinkers. The Victorian Reinvention of Race examines a more influential set of the era's writers and colonial officials, some French but most of them British. Attempting to do serious social analysis, these men oversimplified humanity into biologically heritable, mentally and morally unequal, colour-based races. Thinkers giving in to this racist temptation included Alexis de Tocqueville when he was writing on Algeria, Arthur de Gobineau who influenced the Nazis, Walter Bagehot of The Economist, and Charles Darwin whose Descent of Man was influenced by Bagehot. Victorians on Race also examines officials and thinkers such as Tocqueville in Democracy in America, the Duke of Argyll and Governor Gordon of Fiji who exercised methodological care, doing the hard work of testing their categories against the evidence. They analyzed human groups without slipping into racial categorization. Author Edward Beasley examines the extent to which the Gobineau-Bagehot-Darwin way of thinking about race penetrated the minds of certain key colonial governors. He further explores the hardening of the rhetoric of race prejudice in some quarters in England in the nineteenth century, the processes by which racism was first formed.
