HUMAN DEVELOPMENT AND SCHOOL LEARNING

Human development can be defined psychologically as the pattern of movement or change that begins at conception and continuous through the human life span (santruck- 2005)

The study of human development gives you insights on where actually you came from (who were you) (who are you) how to come from.

Thus development involves stages from born to death that every individual must have passed through different development task which are the necessary activities and behaviors characterizing each stage of development e.g. childish play.

Human development involves two main concepts which are

- ✓ Growth
- ✓ Maturation

GROWTH

This refers to an increase in body size, weight, shape and height. It involves quantitative changes. Growth is believed to occur rapidly during the pre-natal and adolescence periods of human development.

MATURATION

This refers to change in mental abilities and function ability e.g. language use, thinking etc. Maturation involves to a large extent the unfolding of genetic code and that is significantly a qualitative of human development.

International Encyclopedia of Developmental and Instructional Psychology Erik de Corte, Franz E. Weinert, 1996 This Encyclopedia intends to provide a research based overview in an educational perspective of the present state of the art of our knowledge and understanding of the conditions processes and modifiabilities of human development and learning The Encyclopedia focuses on both developmental psychology and instructional psychology Over the past decade the boundaries between these two separate research domains have become increasingly obscure Indeed developmental psychologists have shown a growing interest in the impact of environmental factors on development this has led to the study of educational and instructional variables the pre dominantly environmental factors Meanwhile instructional psychology has become a major subdomain of research on human cognition and development A substantial contribution to the synergy between both domains derives from the robust research finding that developmental changes are very important conditions as well as consequences of the acquisition of knowledge and meta cognitive strategies The resulting changes have inspired the decision to combine both developmental and instructional psychology into one single volume The trend toward the integration of both domains notwithstanding the systematic discussion of their research findings requires a certain delimitation of the two fields The Encyclopedia is divided into 16 areas in order to reflect the specific nature as well as the integration of both domains In the first section which is most representative of the integrative tendency a general framework of research on human development learning and instruction is outlined The next six chapters are concerned with the various aspects of human development and learning The remaining nine sections represent an overview of the research findings on learning and instruction which are relevant to education Articles include updated and revised material from the International Encyclopedia of Education 2nd Edition described by Choice as being a premier resource when judged on virtually every criteria applied to a reference work The Encyclopedia provides an informative introduction to aspects of developmental psychology and instructional psychology that significantly influence education Encyclopedia of Education and Human Development Stephen J. Farenga, Daniel Ness, 2015-07-17 This comprehensive and exhaustive reference work on the subject of education from the primary grades through higher education combines educational theory with practice making it a unique contribution to the educational reference market Issues related to human development and learning are examined by individuals whose specializations are in diverse areas including education psychology sociology philosophy law and medicine The book focuses on important themes in education and human development Authors consider each entry from the perspective of its social and political conditions as well as historical underpinnings The book also explores the people whose contributions have played a seminal role in the shaping of educational ideas institutions and organizations and includes entries on these institutions and organizations This work integrates numerous theoretical frameworks with field based applications from many areas in educational research Theories of Human Development Barbara M. Newman, Philip R. Newman, 2015-06-26 Key human development theories that continue to guide research and practice are examined in this engaging text Ten key theories are grouped into three families those that emphasize biological systems environmental factors and those that reflect an interaction between the two This organization enhances students ability to evaluate compare and contrast theories both within and across families Each family is introduced with an overview of their unique perspectives and the rationale for grouping them together Discussion of each theory includes the cultural historical context during the theory's development its key concepts and ideas extensions of the theory in contemporary work an example showing a modification of the theory an application of how the theory is used to inform practice and an analysis of how the theory answers 6 basic questions that a human development theory should address Each chapter includes an overview of the strengths and weaknesses of the theories to facilitate comparisons Theories that have a clear lifespan focus along with cases and examples that address issues across the lifespan are included The second edition features A new chapter on bioecological theory that highlights the increased use of this theory in the development of family school and community intervention programs A new epilogue that examines the same case via each of the ten theories illustrating their similarities and differences and how these ideas cast a unique light on a common situation New opening cases that bring theory to life along with narrative that links the case to the chapter's concepts guiding questions that help students compare theoretical perspectives critical thinking questions that focus on using the theory to interpret the case and personal life experiences and recommended resources that extend students understanding More examples from various disciplines that address topics students are likely to encounter as professionals A new glossary that defines the boldfaced key terms Enhanced website at www.psypress.com 9781848726673 that provides instructors with a test bank Power points discussion questions and activities additional cases with questions teaching notes for using the book with various types of majors and a conversion guide outlining changes to the new edition and students with key terms with hot links to their definitions chapter summaries and outlines and additional resources for further study Updated research and applications highlight the latest scientific developments Ideal for advanced undergraduate or beginning graduate courses in theories of development lifespan or child development taught in psychology human development family studies education and social work

Recent Theories of Human Development R. Murray Thomas, 2000-10-17 Intended as supplemental reading in courses on theories of development this book augments traditional core texts by providing students with more depth on about two dozen recent and emerging theories that have appeared over the course of the past 20 years This period has seen a decline of the traditional grand theories that attempt to apply to all people all the time in favor of micro theories that focus more on individual differences so a book like this actually points the way toward the future rather than dryly reviewing the past In addition the author inspects the changing ways in which the concept of theory itself has been interpreted during this period and he concludes with a chapter suggesting future directions
