

Educational anthropology

In a general sense, educational anthropology involves the use of anthropological theory, data, and methods to study educational practices, institutions, and problems in their proper cultural contexts. The range of educational institutions studied varies from highly formal school systems in industrialized societies to very informal systems in which important cultural knowledge is passed down from generation to generation by kin through such means as storytelling, experiential learning, and peer interaction. The 1960s and 1970s witnessed many case studies in education and culture. For example, Thomas Williams (1969) wrote A Borneo Childhood, a study of how Dusun children learned what they needed to know at different stages of development; Margaret Read (1960) wrote Children of Their Fathers, an ethnography of growing up among the Ngoni of Malawi; and Bruce Grindal (1972), in his work Growing Up in Two Worlds, ethnographically examined how the Sisala children of northern Ghana were caught between traditional and more modern forms of education. At the same time, other educational anthropologists were working closer to home. For example, Gerry Rosenfeld (1971) studied school failure among Black children in Harlem schools, John Hostetler and Gertrude Huntington (1971) studied the process of education among the Amish in Ohio, and Martha Ward (1971) examined speech acquisition among Black children near New Orleans.

The Anthropology of Education David Julian Hodges, 2011 This unique anthology outlines and reconsiders the disciplinary origins of the anthropology of education The book is a student oriented compilation of classic articles written by anthropologists who helped pioneer the field some fifty years ago Their names constitute a veritable who's who in cultural anthropology Kluckhohn Linton Mead Benedict and Redfield to name a few who while accomplished in the general area of cultural anthropology nevertheless gave specific attention to the developing area of the anthropology of education Also included in the collection are contemporary classics by non anthropologists such as Paulo Freire James Baldwin and Jonathan Kozol who tackle more recent issues facing education and educators The readings are termed classic because collectively they represent the best of that to which today's students of the anthropology of education should be exposed for a first rate introduction to the field However despite their relevance and importance many of these articles are out of print difficult to find or otherwise unavailable Still there is an abiding need for the insights they provide The need for the thinking of these pioneers is as great today arguably greater than when the articles were written Their contributions and insights must not succumb to the awful tendency of our times for scholarship to be both instant and disposable

Education Anthropology G. F. Kneller, 1965-01-15 Foundations of Education J. Calderon, 1998 Handbook of Research on Waldorf Education Jost Schieren, 2023-03-07 Waldorf Education An all round balanced approach to education that is equally concerned with intellectual cognitive and artistic creative learning A practice and experience based pedagogy Non selective and open to all children and young people offering a stress free secure learning environment across 12 grades embedded in a community of students teachers and parents An alternative education that has been successfully practiced for over a century The first Waldorf School was founded in Stuttgart Germany in 1919 Today Waldorf Education is practiced in all countries and cultures around the world in over 1 000 schools more than 2 000 kindergartens and numerous centers for special needs education This makes Waldorf Education the most prevalent alternative approach to teaching And yet despite the success and now empirically validated recognition that Waldorf schools enjoy the theory underlying them remains controversial Within the academic debate Waldorf Education is seen as ideologic and unscientific This publication sets out to bring clarity to this debate Renowned researchers explain and discuss Waldorf Education s foundations in relation to the current discourse on education and core disciplines such as theory of knowledge anthropology developmental psychology learning theory and the theory of professions This scientific inquiry into Waldorf Education is breaking new ground casting light on its fascinating humanistic ideal and holistic potential Education for Reflective Ministry J. A. van der Ven,1998 The picture that pastors have of themselves and of their experiences in the ministry is ambivalent On the one hand they find the pastoral work which they perform meaningful important and relevant On the other hand pastors suffer from chronic stress of some sort caused by different factors on the micro meso and macro level of religion church and society Many pastors experience the modernization and subsequently the secularization process as a very serious problem which negatively influences religious life within the parish Pastors are bowed down by uncertainty over how their work contributes to the parish mission in today s society and even more so by doubts over what that mission is in particular the diaconal mission Which direction can shall should the pastor take if neither the church nor the theological institutions are able to provide him or her with a clear frame of reference an attractive perspective a convincing policy a plausible course of action and a meaningful set of aims goals and objectives There is no alternative but to risk taking responsibility for oneself and choosing one s own course of action To take this risk is not reckless or foolhardy as long as the choices are always informed by a religious self reflection that is open to tradition as well as to the future This allows the pastor to be his own guide to transgress useless customs and habits and cross the boundaries into as yet unknown territory The task of education must be to provide the foundation that enables the pastor to make those choices and take those risks in a well considered prudent and truly religious manner This study represents not only an interpretative description of some of the education for ministry in today s societal cultural and ecclesiastical context in the western world but also a proposal for a new model the reflective ministry model Special Education in the 21st Century Margret A. Winzer,2000 In the late 20th century a tidal wave of calls for reform and inclusion of special needs students swept over public special education The current debates over implementing these themes today are authoritatively addressed by 19 distinguished scholars in this thorough volume Organized into three cohesive sections it begins with the issues of educational reform and the emerging discourses of disability and integration in the inclusion movement Respective chapters appraise specific arguments for inclusion and the federal legislation and litigation surrounding and supporting special education The second part features the thorny issue of assessment the technological revolution in special education and the disposition of teacher training The third section scrutinizes the inclusion of various populations of students with exceptional needs particularly how teachers can make an easy transition from ideology to educational practice Special Education in the 21st Century sets the standard for extrapolating future directions by wisely weighing classroom practices for different groups and the technical problems of resources management social groupings instructional design and the supposition that teachers will automatically change to accommodate an even greater diversity of learners Handbook of Research in the Social Foundations of Education Steven Tozer, Bernardo P. Anthropologies of Education Kathryn M. Anderson-Levitt, 2011-10-01 Despite international congresses and international journals anthropologies of education differ significantly around the world Linguistic barriers constrain the flow of ideas which results in a vast amount of research on educational anthropology that is not published in English or is difficult for international readers to find This volume responds to the call to attend to educational research outside the United States and to break out of metropolitan provincialism A guide to the anthropologies and ethnographies of learning and schooling published in German French Spanish Portuguese Italian Slavic languages Japanese and English as a second language show how scholars in Latin America Japan and elsewhere adapt European American and other approaches to create new traditions As the contributors show educators draw on different foundational research and different theoretical discussions Thus this global survey raises new questions and casts a new light on what has become a too familiar discipline in the United States
