Economic Organization And Settlement Hierarchies Ceramic Production And Exchange Among The Hohokam:

Economic Organization and Settlement Hierarchies Karen G. Harry, 2003-10-30 The economic organization of two Hohokam communities Marana and Los Robles is studied here by examining the production and distribution of ceramics The author looks at the degree of integration or interaction among residents of a single community the relationship of community inhabitants with people living outside the community and the significance of site hierarchies and differentially distributed artifacts The study demonstrates that the economic organization of middle range societies cannot be adequately interpreted using neo evolutionary models which assume a direct correlation between political organization social complexity and the organization of craft production and distribution Although much has been written about the economic organization of prehistoric settlement hierarchies nearly all studies have based their conclusions on indirect evidence such as settlement patterns and artifact distributions In this study economic organization is evaluated directly Using compositional data obtained from the chemical and mineralogical analysis of decorated ceramics from the Hohokam communities of Marana and Los Robles three issues are examined 1 the degree of integration of interaction between residents of a single community 2 the relationship of community inhabitants with people living outside the community and 3 the significance of site hierarchies and differentially distributed artifacts Through the investigation of these issues several contributions are made to the understanding of hierarchically organized settlement communities Perhaps most importantly the study demonstrates that differential distributions of artifacts need not indicate elite controlled production and distribution In addition the importance of using direct evidence for modeling prehistoric economic organization is illustrated rather than relying on indirect measures such as settlement patterns This study will be of interest to anyone studying prehistoric settlement hierarchies the organization of craft production and distribution in middle range societies and ceramic production and exchange The author's conclusions add to a growing body of data indicating that middle range societies cannot be easily categorized as either egalitarian or complex as neo evolutionary models would suggest Instead this study demonstrates that substantial variability can exist in the way that such societies are economically socially and politically organized and that historical perspective must be incorporated into the interpretation of prehistoric communities if we are to understand why they were organized the way that they were

New Perspectives on Mimbres Archaeology Barbara J. Roth, Patricia A. Gilman, Roger Anyon, 2018-11-27 In the early 1970s understanding of the Mimbres region as a whole was in its infancy In the following decades thanks to dedicated work by enterprising archaeologists and nonprofit organizations our understanding of the Mimbres region has become more complex nuanced and rich New Perspectives on Mimbres Archaeology brings together these experts in a single volume for the first time The contributors discuss current knowledge of the people who lived in the Mimbres region of the southwestern United States and how our knowledge has changed since the Mimbres Foundation directed by Steven A LeBlanc began the first modern archaeological investigations in the region Many of these authors have spent decades conducting the fieldwork that has allowed for a broader understanding of Mimbres society Focusing on a variety of important research topics of interest to archaeologists including the social contexts of people and communities the role of ritual and ideology in Mimbres society evidence of continuities and cultural change through time and the varying impacts of external influences throughout the region New Perspectives on Mimbres Archaeology presents recent data on and interpretations of the entire pre Hispanic sequence of occupation Additional contributions include a history of nonprofit archaeology by William H Doelle and a concluding chapter by Steven A LeBlanc reflecting on his decades long work in Mimbres archaeology and outlining important areas for the next wave of research Geochemical Evidence for

Long-Distance Exchange Michael D. Glascock, 2002-12-30 Studies of prehistoric exchange of goods provide information about the types of economic interaction social organization or political structures in which prehistoric peoples were engaged Long distance exchange is a special situation where the materials exchanged crossed significant boundaries whether they were geographic social political or otherwise By examining the types and quantities of goods exchanged along with the directions and distances they moved archaeologists are able to examine the dynamic properties of exchange systems i e how they operate and why they undergo change The purpose of this volume is to present a number of case studies of long distance exchange from around the world which demonstrate the use of geochemical analysis of artifacts to find evidence of exchange More important than the use of analytical technique employed or the types of artifacts studied are the interpretations themselves which illustrate that exchange studies are maturing and helping archaeologists to develop more accurate models of exchange New Mexico and the Pimería Alta John G. Douglass, William Graves, 2017-03-01 Focusing on the two major areas of the Southwest that witnessed the most intensive and sustained colonial encounters New Mexico and the Pimer a Alta compares how different forms of colonialism and indigenous political economies resulted in diverse outcomes for colonists and Native peoples Taking a holistic approach and studying both colonist and indigenous perspectives through archaeological ethnohistoric historic and landscape data contributors examine how the processes of colonialism played out in the American Southwest Although these broad areas New Mexico and southern Arizona northern Sonora share a similar early colonial history the particular combination of players sociohistorical trajectories and social relations within each area led to and were transformed by markedly diverse colonial encounters Understanding these different mixes of players history and social relations provides the foundation for conceptualizing the enormous changes wrought by colonialism throughout the region The presentations of different cultural trajectories also offer important avenues for future thought and discussion on the strategies for missionization and colonialism The case studies tackle how cultures evolved in the light of radical transformations in cultural traits or traditions and how different groups reconciled to this change A much needed up to date examination of the colonial era in the Southwest New Mexico and the Pimer a Alta demonstrates the intertwined relationships between cultural continuity and transformation during a time of immense change and highlights

The Swift Creek Gift Neill J. Wallis, 2011-02-23 Assesses Woodland Period interactions using technofunctional mineralogical and chemical data derived from Swift Creek Complicated Stamped sherds A unique dataset for studying past social interactions comes from Swift Creek Complicated Stamped pottery that linked sites throughout much of the Eastern Woodlands but that was primarily distributed over the lower Southeast Although connections have been demonstrated their significance has remained enigmatic How and why were apparently utilitarian vessels or the wooden tools used to make them distributed widely across the landscape This book assesses Woodland Period interactions using technofunctional mineralogical and chemical data derived from Swift Creek Complicated Stamped sherds whose provenience is fully documented from both mortuary mounds and village middens along the Atlantic coast Together these data demonstrate formal and functional differences between mortuary and village assemblages along with the nearly exclusive occurrence of foreign made cooking pots in mortuary contexts The Swift Creek Gift provides insight into the unique workings of gift exchanges to transform seemingly mundane materials like cooking pots into powerful tools of commemoration affiliation and ownership

Ceramics and Community Organization Among the Hohokam David R. Abbott,2000-03 Among desert farmers of the prehistoric Southwest irrigation played a crucial role in the development of social complexity This innovative study examines the changing relationship between irrigation and community organization among the Hohokam and shows through ceramic data how that dynamic relationship influenced sociopolitical development David Abbott contends that reconstructions of Hohokam social patterns based solely on settlement pattern data provide limited insight into prehistoric social relationships By analyzing ceramic exchange patterns he provides complementary information that challenges existing models of sociopolitical organization among the Hohokam of central Arizona Through ceramic analyses from Classic period sites such as Pueblo Grande Abbott shows that ceramic production sources and exchange networks can be determined from the composition surface treatment attributes and size and shape of clay containers The distribution networks revealed by these analyses provide evidence for community boundaries and the web of social ties within them Abbott s meticulous research documents formerly unrecognized horizontal cohesiveness in Hohokam organizational structure and suggests how irrigation was woven into the fabric of their social evolution By demonstrating the contribution that ceramic research can make toward resolving issues about community organization this work expands the breadth and depth of pottery studies in the American Southwest Pottery Economics in Mesoamerica Christopher A. Pool,George J. Bey,2007 Pottery is one of the most important classes of artifacts available to archaeologists and anthropologists Every year volumes of data are generated detailing ceramic production distribution and consumption How these data can be interpreted in relation to the social and cultural framework of prehistoric societies in Mesoamerica is the subject of this book Nine chapters written by some of the most well known and respected scholars in the field offer readers an in depth look at key advances from the past fifteen years These scholars examine ethnoarchaeological studies and the Preclassic Formative Classic and Postclassic periods and cover geographic areas from eastern to central Mesoamerica In a series of case studies contributors address a range of new and developing theories and methods for inferring the technological organizational and social dimensions of pottery economics and draw on a range of sociopolitical examples Specific topics include the impacts and costs of innovations the role of the producer in technological choices the outcomes when errors in vessel formation are tolerated or rectified the often undocumented multiple lives and uses of ceramic pieces and the difficulties associated with locating and documenting ceramic production areas in tropical lowlands A compelling collection that clearly integrates and synthesizes a wide array of data this book is the definitive text on pottery economics in Mesoamerica and an important contribution to the fields of anthropology archaeology ancient history and the economics of pre industrial societies CONTENTS Acknowledgments 1
