Social Policy for an Aging Society Carole B. Cox, 2015-01-16 As people age they are at increased risk of having their basic human rights threatened or violated When age is perceived as incompetence it can easily lead to discrimination that impacts human rights Based on the premise that social policy must reflect human rights principles this graduate level textbook views the challenges associated with aging as opportunities for policy development that stresses the rights of older adults rather than needs The text distinguishes between needs and rights and describes those policies and services that best ensure that the rights of older adults are actually met particularly programs that enable people to remain in their own communities so they can benefit from continued integration and participation in society Issues and challenges surrounding such efforts and gaps in social policies faced by specific subsets of older people are critically examined The book first analyzes current aging policies and rights and considers the Older Americans Act as a basic policy framework With an eye to promoting independence the book discusses issues of income housing transportation health and home care and what constitutes a livable community along with policies that promote wellbeing and focus on preventing senior abuse and exploitation Challenges faced by older workers are covered as are issues particular to family caregivers older women and grandparents as caregivers Gaps in social policies for LG BT seniors and

Bosworth, Gary Burtless, 1998-05-01 By 2030 when most American baby boomers will have retired all the large industrial economies will see a massive increase in the old age population This book examines population aging and its implications for public retirement programs in the five largest industrial economies Britain France Germany Japan and the United States The authors report on national demographic trends examine the current living conditions of the aged population explain the structure of the retirement system and offer estimates of future budgetary costs of the public programs They also discuss national debates over the potential reform of public retirement systems While all five countries share the prospect of an older population variations in the size and timing of demographic change as well as important differences in the structure of public programs for the elderly suggest that population aging will have widely different implications in each country In Germany and Japan for example the population will not only grow older but may actually decline because of low birth rates The United States will experience less aging but its debate over reform treats seriously the possibility of privatizing public retirement commitments The Aging Population and the Competitiveness of Cities Peter Karl Kresl,Daniele Ietri,2010-01-01 While much of the current literature on the economic consequences of an aging population focuses on the negative aspects this enlightening book argues that seniors can bring significant benefits such as vitality and competitiveness to an urban economy The authors illustrate the ways an aging population can have a positive impact on urban centers including the move by large numbers of seniors from the suburbs to the city where their disproportionate consumption of education and the arts helps rejuvenate city centers Given this the authors conclude that a large and active senior population has the potential to assist a city in the achievement of its strategic economic objectives The book includes analyses of the effects of population aging on best practices in 40 cities in the US and EU with surprising results as well as interviews with city officials and leaders Academics researchers and public officials in the areas of urban development public policy and aging will find much in this original approach to interest and provoke debate The Political Future of Social Security in Aging Societies Vincenzo Galasso,2006 A quantitative analysis of the political sustainability of social security reform in France Germany Italy Spain the UK and the US with the suggestion that population aging will lead to more pension spending and that raising the retirement age is the most politically viable reform measure
