Waters in Peril Leah Bendell-Young,Patricia Gallagher,2012-12-06 Who Speaks for the Oceans The question has been asked a lot in recent years just who is looking out for our oceans Covering over seventy percent of the earth's surface it is the world's largest common property resource jointly owned by over six billion humans. It is the foundation for life on earth as we know it. Over the years many people have spoken about various aspects of our ocean environments and they have spoken to different audiences in many different ways. For many in the public realm Jacques Cousteau spoke for the ocean. Since his passing no single voice with the same public identity or recognition has emerged. Certainly the many governments bordering our oceans cannot agree on common principles or issues of ocean use and management. We might be tempted to think that we do not have an ocean spokesperson or champion but we would be wrong. Today the rapidly growing number of scientists working hard to expand our understanding of our ocean realm are the ocean voices we should listen to. At the same time as our scientists advance their understanding of the oceans we all need to advance our abilities and commitment to communicate on behalf of the oceans with broader and broader audiences who need to be aware of where things stand. Often called the last great frontier earth's oceans are vast, widely varied, and are hard to get to and into to do the research we need done.

It explains the origins of Machiavelli's reputation and the spread of his fame as the foundation for the many uses and misuses of his name. They conclude by redressing the most persistent distortions of Machiavelli.
