Constituting Communities John Clifford Holt, Jacob N. Kinnard, Jonathan S. Walters, 2012-02-01 Constituting Communities explores how community functions within Theravada Buddhist culture. Although the dominant focus of Buddhist studies for the past century has been on doctrinal and philosophical issues, this volume concentrates on discourses that produced them and why and how these discourses and practices shaped Theravada communities in South and Southeast Asia. From a variety of perspectives including historical, literary, doctrinal, and philosophical, and social and anthropological, the contributors explore the issues that have proven important and definitive for identifying what it has meant individually and socially to be Buddhist in this particular region. The book focuses on textual discourse, how communities are formed and maintained within pluralistic contexts, and the formation of community both within and between the monastic and lay settings. Mahāvamsa, the Great Chronicle of Sri Lanka Mahānāma, Ananda W. P. Guruge, 1989 The Dīpavamsa and Mahāvamsa and Their Historical Development in Ceylon Wilhelm Geiger, 1908 Relics of the Buddha John S. Strong, 2018-06-05 Buddhism is popularly seen as a religion stressing the truth of impermanence. How then to account for the long standing veneration in Asian Buddhist communities of bone fragments, hair, teeth, and other bodily bits said to come from the historic Buddha? Early European and American scholars of religion, influenced by a characteristic Protestant bias against relic worship, declared such practices to be superstitious and fraudulent and far from the true essence of Buddhism. John Strong's book, by contrast, argues that relic veneration has played a serious and integral role in Buddhist traditions in South and Southeast Asia and that it is in no way foreign to Buddhism. The book is structured around the life story of the Buddha, starting with traditions about relics of previous buddhas and relics from the past lives of the Buddha, Sakyamuni. It then considers the death of the Buddha, the collection of his bodily relics after his cremation, and stories of their spread to different parts of Asia. The book ends with a consideration of the legend of the future parinirvana, extinction of the relics prior to the advent of the next Buddha, Maitreya. Throughout, the author does not hesitate to explore the many versions of these legends and to relate them to their ritual, doctrinal, artistic, and social contexts. Pelagic Passageways Rila Mukherjee, 2011 Due to the frontierization of nation states, maritime historians have tended to ignore the northern Bay of Bengal. Yet this marginal region, now dispersed over the four nation states of India, China, Myanmar, and Bangladesh, was not marginal in the past. Until recently, however, historians have concentrated largely on the big four: the Gujarat, Malabar, Coromandel, and western Bengal coasts. Extreme eastern South Asia, Bengal, and the lands to its north east, fanning into Burma and China, or modern India's north east and beyond, is the focus of Pelagic Passageways. This regional unit, including diverse topographic features—plains, forests, estuaries, deltas, rivers, mountains, lakes, plateaus, and remote passes—oscillates between unity and fragmentation, between centrality and marginality in the larger space of the Bay of Bengal. To attempt a history of this space is indeed challenging. There is not one but two deltas here: the western delta corresponding to present West Bengal in India and centred now on Kolkata, and the south eastern delta in present Bangladesh centred on Dhaka and running into Arakan Not merely in terms of location but on a historical axis too the two deltas are vastly different as they have followed disparate trajectories dictated in part by their geographies Pelagic Passageways therefore questions the conventional fault line located on the south eastern Bengal delta between the historiography of South and South East Asia Concentrating on commodity and currency flows travel trade routes and interactive networks Pelagic Passageways visualizes the cultural space of the northern Bay of Bengal as embracing upland landlocked areas Ava Yunnan the Tripuri Dimasa and Ahom states not usually seen as part of maritime history This collection of essays suggests that they too were a part of the social and commercial networks of the Indian Ocean While these countries literally fell off the map this volume proposes that we see these areas instead as crossroads mediating flows between the land dwelling and aquatic worlds
